SOVIETS FAIL TO APPEAR AT
UNO MEETINGIMMEDIATE AIRING
OF IRAN DISPUTE TO BE PUSHED

BY FRANCIS W. CARPENTER

New York, March 28 (AP)—The United Nations security council was reported authoritatively today to be determined to go ahead with the Iranian case despite the boycott by the Russian delegate, who for the second straight day absented himself from a council meeting.

At the close of the council's first executive session in the United States the council officially announced that the 10 delegates participating had found a "considerable area of agreement" for dealing with the Iranian case.

Three Questions Unanswered

Informed sources, who would not be otherwise identified, later said that the council members informally decided to continue with the case. Further, it was said they may ask for reports from both Moscow and Tehran on these three major, unanswered questions:

1. Why are Russian assurances that their troops are being removed from Iran, barring unforeseen developments, not satisfactory to the Iranian government?

2. What negotiations are now going on between Russia and Iran?

3. Is the removal of Red army forces conditional upon these negotiations?

The council decided to resume open sessions at 3 p. m. tomorrow at its interim headquarters at Hunter College, at which, it was said, the Iranian representative, Hussein Ala, will be asked questions submitted by the Russian delegate, Oscar Lange, and any other questions from council members.

Then, it was added, the Iranian would withdraw from the table and the 10 delegates would decide what to do next.

Gromyko Is Puzzle

The council met without the Russian delegate, who first said he would attend the closed meeting then added to the confusion by remaining away from it.

Further, the Russian delegate, Ambassador Andrei A. Gromyko, said at 7:40 p. m. E.S.T.—after the council session was over—that he did not know whether he would attend tomorrow's open meeting of the council at Hunter College.

While the Russians remained away from the security council session, they took part in other activities of the council, having representatives at the council's committee of experts on procedure and at the meeting of the military staff committee. They insist they have not pulled out of the United Nations, but that they will not discuss the Iranian issue.

The smaller party to the contest—Iran—had nothing to say about the council's action.

The Iranian general staff announced the government had ordered the army not to go back into territory evacuated by the Russians.

There was no indication from Tehran why the government had halted general staff plans to reoccupy the land being yielded by the Russians.

One Iranian general staff officer said in Tehran that the army had received no reports that the Russians were actually leaving Iran.

A British foreign office spokesman said the government considered the authority of the United Nations was placed in jeopardy as a result of Russia walking out of the council meeting.

Extension of Draft
Act Essential, Two
Top Generals Insist

Washington, March 28. (AP)—A pair of major generals testified today that unless the draft act is extended the congress and the country face these alternatives:

1. Retention, for indefinite service, of thousands of men already drafted;
2. Serious manpower shortages in the army, and possibly the navy and marines, at a time when Germany and Japan must be policed and international peace is not determined;
3. Turning the "best army in the world into a second rate outfit."

Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, wartime director of selective service, and Maj. Gen. William S. Paul, army chief of personnel, offered this testimony to the senate military affairs committee.

Both insisted, despite sharp questions and comments from opposing senators, that the only way the United States can hope to fulfill its immediate international obligations is to extend the draft act which expired May 15.

Chairman Elbert Thomas (D-Utah), publicly opposed to extension of the wartime draft, contended that voluntary enlistments recently had "broken all records" and would provide all men needed by the armed services.

General Hershey replied: "When you get 200,000 or 300,000 men who enlist a day or two before inductions you can call them volunteers if you want to."

The general said the army needs 50,000 men monthly for the next year and will get only one-fifth of that number or 10,000 monthly if the draft act expires.

General Paul, army personnel boss, said the most optimistic hope for volunteers was 900,000 compared with requirements for a minimum army of 1,550,000 on July 1 of this year and 1,070,000 in 1947.

General Hershey said he favored an "indefinite extension" of the draft act with termination up to congress later, but added that the one year extension asked by the war department "is acceptable."

SIGLER EXPENSE
QUIZ CONTINUES'Excessive' Witness Fees
Of Grand Jury Probe
Under Scrutiny

Lansing, March 28. (AP)—Returning to work after a two-and-a-half week recess, the three-member senate committee investigating the Ingham county grand jury today continued its study of expenses incurred while Kim Sigler was the grand jury's special prosecutor.

The committee met in secret session today, and Senator Ivan A. Johnston, its chairman, said he expected the members to continue their work Friday behind closed doors.

Johnston said the group asked "only routine questions" today of its one witness, Murray Young, state police detective formerly assigned to the grand jury.

The committee has not met since Circuit Judge Louis E. Cosh, the grand juror, dismissed Sigler as special prosecutor and replaced him with Richard B. Foster. Sigler later announced he was a candidate for the Republican gubernatorial nomination.

In previous public statements, committee members charged that Charles F. Hemans, former lobbyist and University of Michigan regent, had received approximately $16,000 in witness fees and expenses, and that two former state senators and a member of the Ku Klux Klan also had received "excessive" witness fees. Hemans was a key grand jury witness.

Michigan University
Ranks Fifth In U. S.

Ann Arbor, Mich., March 28 (AP)—The University of Michigan now is the fifth largest institution of its kind in the United States, fall term enrollment figures reveal.

This was indicated in a survey made by the University of Cincinnati, announced here today.

Michigan's total of full-time students for the 1945 fall term was 14,331. This was exceeded only by the University of California with 19,692, Columbia with 13,937, Minnesota with 12,662, and New York University with 12,031.

Michigan officials said it was possible the university may rank even higher at present, since enrollment in the last few months has increased to 14,387.

Michigan State College was 20th in the nation with 5,164 students, the survey showed. Wayne University of Detroit, 12th in 1944, dropped out of the top 25.

PLANTS IGNORE
WAR SENIORITYReturning Veterans To Be Reinstated By GM
On Straight Basis

Detroit, March 28 (AP)—General Motors Corp. has instructed its plants to ignore "super seniority" rulings of selective service officials, it was learned today.

Officials of the nearly 100 GM plants have been instructed to reinstate returning World War II veterans on a straight union seniority basis, pending adjudication of the "super seniority" principle by the courts.

The corporation declined comment on the development.

"Super seniority" gives the veteran the right to return to his old job regardless of the seniority of the non-veteran now holding it.

Courts in several states have been divided in their opinions on the legality of the "super seniority" principle and a clarifying decision from the supreme court is anticipated.

GM's reemployment tempo was stepped up again today when 20,000 additional production employees were recalled in plants in Michigan and Indiana. It was the largest number called back in a single day since the strike of 175,000 production workers began last November 21.

Chrysler Corp. said 2,000 employees of its body department were back at work today following a shutdown Wednesday which a corporation spokesman said was caused by a strike of 40 employees. This spokesman attributed the walkout to disgruntlement over the removal by the company of boxes used as chairs by the workers.

Famed Skier Killed
In Airplane Crash
At Menomonie, Wis.

Menomonie, Wis., Mar. 28 (AP)—Lloyd C. Ellingson, 35, former Olympic skier and for the last six years secretary of the National Ski Association, and Paul Luebke, 32, both of Menomonie, were killed tonight when their monoplane crashed into a group of trees in a take-off near here.

Both were killed instantly. Ellingson, recently discharged from the Naval Air Corps where he served as an instructor for four years, was a member of the American Olympic ski team which competed at Lake Placid, N. Y., in 1932.

Republicans Riddle
Truman Housing Bill

Washington, Mar. 28 (AP)—While Republican congressmen hammered at President Truman's principal plan for breaking the housing shortage, the president signed legislation today for a $250,000,000 program to provide 100,000 temporary homes for veterans and their families.

At the Senate banking committee's hearings on the bigger measure, Senator Taft (R-Ohio) served notice he would never agree to let Wilson Wyatt, housing expediter, have blanket authority to spend $600,000,000 in any way he thinks will stimulate home construction.

Taft made that comment after hearing Civilian Production Ad-

No One Nation
To Monopolize
Energy SecretInternational Authority Would Be
Sole Producer, Hold Ownership
Of Key Uranium Ore

By William R. Spear

Washington, March 28. (AP)—A plan for an international "Atomic Development Authority" to be the sole producer of the world's fissionable materials and lease them to the nations for science and industry was released tonight by the state department.

It contemplates that over a period of years and as the ADA is established, knowledge now the exclusive possession of the United States will be made international property and plants like those at Oak Ridge, Tenn., and Hanford, Wash., will be owned and operated by the international authority—and by none other.

Proposal Not Final

The plan, stating that U-235 and plutonium "can be denatured" so as not to lend themselves "readily" to making atomic bombs, was presented to the senate atomic energy committee Monday by Undersecretary of State Dean Acheson, chairman of the official committee which drafted it.

In releasing the full 78-page document tonight, Secretary of State Byrnes wrote in a foreword that it "is not intended as a final plan but 'a place to begin, a foundation on which to build,' in the committee's words."

The plan starts with the premise that "uranium is the only natural substance that can maintain a chain reaction" and "is the key to all foreseeable applications of atomic energy." It adds that "it is not to be anticipated" that the technical reasons for this "will be invalidated by further scientific discovery."

Thus it finds "boundaries" to the problem of "building security against catastrophic use of atomic energy" which would not exist if the energy could be developed "from clay or iron or some other common material."

It also notes that thorium, which "cannot maintain a chain reaction" by itself, may be mixed with uranium to establish a chain reaction "to manufacture material which is an atomic explosive and which can also be used for the maintenance of other chain reactions."

Therefore it proposes to vest the ownership of all the uranium ore and thorium in the world in the international authority and to make it illegal for anyone other than the ADA to possess it or mine it.

Similarly the ADA would own and operate all the production plants in the world, similar to the one the United States has at Oak Ridge, and it would be illegal for any individual nation to build or run one.

The atomic energy source materials produced in these international plants, however, would be made available to secondary plants in the various countries, which might be state-owned or privately owned as the government sees fit. These plants could produce atomic energy for medicinal, research and other scientific purposes, and for power and other industrial uses.

The committee said that the energy produced by these secondary plants would not make explosives. The plants themselves, moreover, would be incapable of being converted to bomb factories without extensive reconstruction which would take "two or three years" and which would advertise the il-

FATAL BEATING
GIVEN CHILD, 4Detroit Woman Accused
Of Murdering Her
Orphaned Niece

Detroit, March 28. (AP)—Mrs. Jeanette Grosso, 36, was held today on a charge of investigation of murder in the fatal beating of orphaned niece, Anna Lee Townsend.

Inspector George Branton, of the Detroit police homicide division, placed the charge against Mrs. Grosso late today after a medical examiner's report showed the child died "of heavy blows about the head."

Branton said the woman had admitted beating the child Wednesday afternoon after she failed to drink her glass of milk quickly at mealtime.

Dr. Albert A. Hughes, Wayne county medical examiner, declared examination of the small, night-gown clad body disclosed "bruises, scratches and welts on the head and torso."

Branton said police were summoned to the Grosso home at 11 p. m. Wednesday—five hours after the time of the child's death, as established by Dr. Hughes—and that Mrs. Grosso told them a close relative of the child had beaten her fatally.

Branton said a police checkup established that the man named was in Marlinton, W. Va., and police of that community located him at work in a shoe factory there today.

The police official declared that Mrs. Grosso, when told of this, changed her story.

IRON MINERS
GET NOWHERE
WITH STRIKEMASS UNION ACTION
KILLS MOVEMENT
BACK TO WORK

Ishpeming, Mich., March 28 (AP)

—The seventh week of the iron mine strike ended today with the parties in the dispute no closer together than when the walkout started February 8.

After a hectic week that saw a back-to-work movement killed by mass union action, this was the admitted situation:

The United Steelworkers of America (CIO) state they are willing at any time to meet with the companies and discuss the wage dispute, but they frankly state that by discussion they mean signing for 18.5 cents an hour increase.

The mining companies have also publicly expressed their willingness to negotiate with the union, but they as frankly state their idea of negotiation is for something less than 18.5 cents increase, which they insist cannot be paid and keep underground mines in operation.

An attempt to bring in third party conciliation failed last night when the mining companies said they could not, under present circumstances, agree to lifting or suspending the temporary circuit court injunctions restraining the union from interfering with operations or return of employees to work.

Conciliator Leaves
Robert Lomasney, conciliator for the state labor mediation board, conceding first attempts had failed, left this morning for Detroit, where he will report his findings.

On Tuesday night, after some conferences, he had gained the withdrawal of the Michigan state police from patrol duty, and an assurance by the union it would negotiate if the injunction were withdrawn. He also had reason to believe that if the injunction were withdrawn mass demonstrations at the mines would be halted. He had freely and openly expressed the hope the mines would consent to dissolution or suspension of the injunction.

With the refusal of the company to consent to this, the United Steelworkers are pressing now for hearing on two motions, one to disqualify the judges who issued the injunctions and another to dissolve the restraining writ.

They anticipated early hearing. No official acknowledgement has been made of demands for ouster of officials of the Marquette county welfare department, who in a statement this week said they were denying relief to strikers from mines which had started operations again late last week.

No Coal Mine
Seizure; Sale
Is Restricted

Washington, March 28 (AP)—The government has no plans for seizing the coal mines in event of a strike, President Truman said today.

To assure supplies for urgent uses, however, to government took over control of the shipment and distribution of soft coal as of midnight tonight.

Meanwhile the labor department sought to avert the nation-wide strike of 400,000 soft coal miners scheduled to begin at midnight Sunday.

Assistant Secretary of Labor John W. Gibson, who helped settle the General Motors Corporation strike, conferred for an hour with the bituminous coal operators. He had had a similar meeting last night with John L. Lewis.

The Solid Fuel Administration issued two orders to take control of bituminous supplies.

One directed operators in all producing districts except Michigan and northern Colorado to hold coal on the tracks at their mines beginning at 12:01 a. m. tonight.

Retail coal dealers at tidewater and lake docks were directed to distribute supplies beginning April 1 only to certain consumers. These are gas plants, hospitals and householders having less than ten days supply, and industrial consumers having less than five days supply.

AMERICA FIRST
HEAD CONVICTEDGerald L. K. Smith Found Guilty Of Contempt
In Chicago Trial

Chicago, March 28 (AP)—Gerald L. K. Smith and his public relations man, Don Lobeck of Detroit, were convicted today of contempt of court because of statements distributed to reporters at the trial of Arthur W. Termine on disorderly conduct charges.

The statements, introduced in evidence, declared the prosecution in the Termine trial "has no leg to stand on" and called it a "cold blooded persecution."

Smith, head of the America First party, and Lobeck were convicted of contempt of municipal court by Judge John V. McCormick.

At conclusion of the contempt trial in the judge's chambers, at which four news reporters were principal witnesses called by City Prosecutor A. A. Pantalis, Judge McCormick said:

"Mr. Smith and Lobeck are held guilty. I intend to impose jail sentences on both of them."

He then continued the contempt case to April 3, telling Smith's attorney, Maximilian S. George, he would be given an opportunity to cite law in the case. Smith and Lobeck were released on their lawyer's recognizance.

The court dismissed a contempt citation against Fred Kister, Chicago writer and speaker at a Smith rally February 7 which was accompanied by a disturbance outside the building on Chicago's west side.

Judge McCormick is presiding at a jury trial of Termine, suspended priest of Huntville, Ala., on disorderly conduct charges stemming from that meeting. Smith and Kister are to be tried later on disorderly conduct charges.

Liquor Commission
Lifts Ban On Cards
In Licensed Places

Lansing, March 28. (AP)—Fifty-five private clubs were notified by the state liquor control commission today that it considered them unqualified for renewal of their liquor licenses.

Dates for the commission set hearing dates for those who wished to appeal for April 10, 11, 17, 18, 24 and 25. Final actions on renewing of licenses will be taken after the appeals are heard. Names of the organizations will be made public after the licensee is notified of commission action.

At the same time the commission amended its rules on gambling and gaming to permit miniature bowling, shuffleboard, dart games and card games on licensed premises.

Swanky Hollywood
Club Suspended For Refilling Bottles

Sacramento, Calif., March 28 (AP)—The State Board of Equalization today suspended Ciro's, swanky Hollywood night club, for 30 days on a federal charge of having unlawfully refilled 54 bottles of liquor.

The board said evidence indicated the establishment had paid a $1,000 fine in connection with the case. The suspension of the privilege of selling liquor becomes effective April 21.

In Los Angeles, Ciro's manager, Thomas Pryor commented: "We have no knowledge whatsoever of this report. Our management has consistently authorized the sale of nothing but the finest brands of liquor."

ARMY GRIPES
BOARD HEARS
BILL MAULDINFAMED CARTOONIST
RIDDLES OFFICER
CASTE SYSTEM

Washington, March 28 (AP)—Bill

Mauldin, famed GI cartoonist, said today that the Army must "get rid of the theory that an officer breathes special air and is a gentleman while the enlisted man is not."

Mauldin said that the present Army system was set up "centuries ago" in other countries and now is outdated and outmoded.

The 24 year old cartoonist made these statements before a board set up by the war department to study officer enlisted men relationships.

The meeting was closed to reporters but Mauldin explained his stand later to newsmen.

Civilian Ideas Sought
Meantime, Secretary of the Navy Forrestal acted to get some civilian advice on naval practices "disapproved by the public."

He announced the creation of a committee of 40 or more civilians to "work with the Navy on its postwar program." The names of the members will be announced later.

The setup is different from the board of former officers and enlisted men headed by Lt. Gen. James H. Doolittle which is conducting the hearing on complaints against the Army but its purpose apparently is somewhat similar, at least in part.

Mauldin, in talking to reporters, said service newspapers should be run "for the soldier, and not for the war department." He said that in this way soldiers could lift their own morale as well as the efficiency of the service.

He gave this example of what he was talking about: "Obviously a soldier can't vote and decide who should be his commanding officer, but if his officer is inefficient, the soldier ought to be able to call attention to it." He said they can do this in an Army newspaper.

Pacific GI Bitter
Mauldin said that Generals Eisenhower and Bradley had proved that a war could be fought in which the newspapers were allowed to function without any interference from the higher-ups.

On the other hand, he said, newspapers under Gen. MacArthur's command were not as free to print what they please.

"Consequently soldiers who served in the Pacific have a tendency of being much more bitter than those who served in the European theater," he said.

The other side of the picture was presented by Lt. Col. William R. Kintner, a West Point graduate of 1940.

Kintner said that plenty of mistakes were made by the Army but much of the present criticism was "merely war hysteria."

Secretary of the Navy Forrestal in a letter inviting civilians to serve on the new naval committee, said they will be free to express opinions on any subject connected with the Navy, but will not be "involved in military matters or in controversial questions."

Suggestions will be sought particularly on morale and welfare, education of reserves, preparation

POOR HOUSING PERILS HEALTH

Overcrowding Increases Disease Spread Possibility

BY WILLIAM A. O'BRIEN, M.D.
Written for N.E. Service

Substandard housing adversely affects health through overcrowding, poor sanitation, noise, and accident hazards.

Overcrowding increases the possibility of the spread of contagious disease, as large numbers of persons living in a small place spread infections with great ease, especially if there are children present. No matter what the economic circumstances, large families have more contagious illness than small families.

Tuberculosis flourishes under substandard living conditions because of the lowered resistance and the greater danger of rapid spread.

DEATH INVADERS SLURS

In one big city with a high infant mortality rate, a study of the homes in the poor districts revealed living conditions which would not have been tolerated for the animals in the zoo. Respiratory, stomach, and bowel infections were the rule among these children, and deaths were frequent because of their weakened condition.

Accidents from fires are more apt to occur in crowded dwellings because of the nature of their construction and the difficulty in getting large numbers of people out through only a few exits. Those who must live under these conditions should adopt all known fire prevention practices. Inflammable material should not be stored, and extreme care in handling heating appliances should be maintained.

Many fires in crowded homes result from carelessness in the use of gasoline.

Overcrowded living conditions may have a marked effect on school work, especially if adults occupy the room where the children sleep. Some parents permit children to remain up beyond their regular bedtime if others are around, forgetting that if given a chance, the average child can learn to sleep under adverse circumstances.

IDEAL REQUIREMENTS

Ideal living conditions provide good safety standards, construction, lighting, ventilation, size and arrangement of rooms, and toilet facilities. A large family living room is required, and there should be separate sleeping quarters for each member of the family.

Control of noise through sound conditioning will reduce nervous irritation.

Sanitary facilities for the preparation and serving of food should exist in all homes.

Housing conditions should also be improved in rural districts.

Public health authorities insist that rural electrification will aid tremendously in bettering farm health conditions.

Woman Unconscious Since August, 1945

Hagerstown, Md., March 28 (AP)—Washington County hospital officials said today that 71-year-old Miss Bertha V. Myers, who has been unconscious at the hospital since August 9, 1945, is making medical history.

During her 231-day coma, she has shown no signs of improvement, although her physical condition has been good, officials reported.

Aurora Borealis Kicks Up Trouble With Wire Service

New York, March 28 (AP)—The present aurora borealis, which has disturbed communications since last week, today was described as the most pronounced in several years.

A Hayden planetarium official said: "The trouble is more pronounced than at any other time in the past three or four years. We are approaching a sunspot maximum. About every eleven years or so the spots are particularly numerous and we are nearing that period."

He said the condition probably would last five or six more days, since the spots move across the sun in about two weeks.

Airplanes were grounded, overseas radio and wire service interrupted, domestic wire services hampered, and short wave radio transmission blocked out by the phenomenon.

Hoover Appointment Is Affront To Russia, James Roosevelt Says

Seattle, March 28 (AP)—James Roosevelt, son of the late president, told interviewers today that a lack of forcefulness is apparent in the Truman administration's handling of foreign and domestic affairs.

Roosevelt declared that America does not look critically upon its Monroe Doctrine, which he asserted was designed to do the same thing in the Americas that Russia is endeavoring to do along its borders.

He termed former President Herbert Hoover's appointment to administer the foreign food program a mistake and an affront to Russia. He said Russia felt Hoover's food policies in Europe after World War I were slanted against Communism.

Member of Canada's Parliament Jailed In Espionage Case

Montreal, March 28 (AP)—Judge Rene Thibierge today committed Fred Rose, Communist and member of the Canadian Parliament, to trial on charges of disclosing official secrets to Russia, and ordered him to prison.

Rose's bail of $10,000 was cancelled. His attorney offered no defense today, saying that was reserved for the trial.

An amended indictment filed against Rose charged him with conspiring with 21 persons, including Dr. Alan Nunn May, recently arrested British physicist; Dr. Raymond Boyer, McGill University professor, and several Russians. Judge Thibierge at a hearing earlier this week found that a prima facie case had been made against Rose.

In Ottawa, meanwhile, Magistrate Glenn Strike adjourned until next Tuesday the preliminary hearing of espionage charges against Capt. Gordon Lunan, 30, an official of the Canadian Information Service. Lunan also is charged with helping to give secret data to the Russians.

The Doolittle board, holding closed sessions, heard as its first witness Joe McCarthy, of New York, who was editor of the Army magazine Yank as a master sergeant and now is with Cosmopolitan magazine.

McCarthy told reporters afterward he had criticized the system of social distinctions he said were made by the Army between officers and enlisted men. As one suggestion he proposed that enlisted men's clubs should have liquor as officers' clubs do.

"In no way do I recommend that there be any breakdown in the discipline of the Army," he said. "It's just that the enlisted man should have the same rights as the officers."

Argentine Voters Elect Col. Peron For 6-Year Term

Buenos Aires, March 28 (AP)—The election of Col. Juan D. Peron, "strong man" of the military faction, to a six-year term as president of Argentina became a certainty today.

His victory was clinched when the ballot count in the city of Buenos Aires gave him a majority and boosted his total electoral votes over the 189 required for election. With the 63 votes from the federal capital, his total stood at 216 against 72 for his opponent, Dr. Jose Tamborini, Democratic Union candidate.

Peron, who created a political machine by seizing control of Argentina's labor movement, will succeed Edelmiro J. Farrell, whose military government Peron helped put in power in the 1943 revolution. No date has been set for Peron's inauguration.

The victory constitutes a diplomatic reverse for the United States state department which favored Tamborini and ten days before the election released a "blue book" charging Peron with Nazi friendships. Peron denied the charge.

DOCTORS NEEDED

Hero Snuffy Smith Arrested For Not Paying Up Alimony

Ann Arbor, Mich., March 28 (AP)—Maynard H. (Snuffy) Smith, war-time hero, has been arrested in Washington on alimony charges, Washtenaw County Prosecutor John W. Rae said today he has been informed.

Rae obtained the warrant at the request of Smith's second wife, Mrs. Helen Smith, about three weeks ago. She charged that her former husband was $2,970 in arrears in alimony and support money granted her at the time of her divorce in 1942.

The prosecutor said Smith has demanded an extradition hearing which has been set for April 19. Extradition papers have been filed with Gov. Harry F. Kelly, Rae added.

Smith won the Congressional medal of honor for saving the lives of his bomber crew over Europe in 1943. Later he gained national attention when he was called from kitchen police duty to accept the award from Henry L. Stimson, then secretary of war.

Port Cities Want Coast Guards Back

Grand Haven, Mich., March 28 (AP)—Representatives of port cities in this area will meet here April 11 to ask Congress for a less rapid demobilization of Coast Guard personnel on the east shore of Lake Michigan.

Demobilization coupled with lack of funds have left several stations along the lake in charge of from one man to a crew of three.

Local officials said the attention of congress would be called to the danger confronting resorters, yachtsmen, fishermen and steamship operators. Additional manpower is needed, they said, due to the approaching resort season.

Representatives at the April meeting are expected from St. Joseph, Benton Harbor, Saugatuck, South Haven, Holland, Grand Rapids, Muskegon, Ludington, Manistee, Charlevoix, Pnetwater, Frankfort and Petoskey.

Inquiries Indicate Big Tourist Season

Grand Rapids, Mich., March 28 (AP)—Booths operated by the Michigan Tourist Council at outdoor shows in Chicago, Cleveland and Detroit handled more than 10,000 inquiries for detailed information on Michigan's tourist facilities.

This was disclosed today by William Palmer, secretary-manager of the West Michigan Tourist and Resort association.

Most of the inquiries, Palmer said, came from persons anxious "to get on the road."

Resort owners have informed the association they are prepared for one of the biggest tourist seasons on record. Mid-July and August are expected to see the peak of the tourist traffic.

Palmer said the tourist areas may be crowded, but that it appeared sufficient facilities would be available to care for everyone traveling in Michigan this summer.

Refugees Will Stay On UNRRA Relief

Atlantic City, N. J., March 28 (AP)—The United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration council voted unanimously today to continue its care of 900,000 European refugees from Poland, Russia and Yugoslavia.

The vote brought to a conclusion one of the principal arguments which began at the London UNRRA session. At that meeting Soviet Russia, Poland and Yugoslavia objected to further relief for the refugees on the ground that they were wanted at home for reconstruction work and that some of them were axis-collaborators.

Trolley Car Wins Race With Stork In Chicago Loop

Chicago, March 28 (AP)—A trolley car won a photo finish race with the stork across Chicago's loop today.

Motorman H. R. Fragel was approaching the loop with 35 passengers when Mrs. Ruth Smith, 19, whispered in his ear she was going to have a baby.

Fragel, father of four children, jammed on the brakes, and said to his passengers:

"Folks, this woman is about to have a baby. You'd better get off and take the next car. We're headed to the hospital!"

The passengers obliged, and Fragel had his conductor put in a telephone call to the Chicago avenue police station.

Then, with his lone passenger, Fragel clanged his speeding trolley seven blocks up State street, passing up astonished would-be riders at each corner.

When he arrived at a stub spur track north of Lake street and out of the loop traffic congestion, a patrol car was awaiting. The woman was rushed to the county hospital and her baby was born as she was being taken into the delivery room.

"I've heard of patrol wagons and squad cars making the stork run," Fragel said, wiping his brow, "but never a street car before."

At the hospital, the young Negro mother told nurses her husband had advised her to take a taxi to the hospital, but she had decided on a trolley instead.

Why Secret Sessions?

THE Army's six-man board appointed to hear complaints against the military caste system undoubtedly will get a load of GI gripes and out of it all may come a greater degree of democracy in our fighting forces than now exists. Particularly encouraging is the attitude of Gen. Eisenhower, chief of staff, who acknowledges that there are definite grounds for complaints regarding the officer-enlisted man relationship.

The decision to hold the hearings in secret sessions is lamentable because this procedure fails to consider the importance of the weight of public opinion in correcting the abuses that will undoubtedly be disclosed. The decision to conduct secret sessions was made, according to the board, in the hope that witnesses would talk more freely. The tide of resentment against the caste system, however, is so strong that there can be no doubt that the GIs and the ex-GIs who will testify would not pull any punches in presenting their testimony, even if the hearings were held in public.

In fact, there is more reason to believe that the soldiers still in service would be better protected against officer reprisals by holding public meetings than by secret sessions.

In any case, the establishment of the inquiry body is a start in the right direction towards correction of the inequities and abuses that now exist in our armed forces.

Industry in Gladstone

GOOD news has come to Gladstone with the announcements that the MacGillis & Gibbs company will expand its operations and that the Ryan Manufacturing company of Rockford, Ill., will establish a small factory there for the manufacture of wood and plastic novelties.

The MacGillis & Gibbs company, which recently branched out into the production of fencing and rustic furniture, plans to employ about twenty-five additional persons. The novelty concern expects to employ a like number.

These are modest additions to Gladstone's industrial set-up, of course, but they represent a start in the right direction. Many successful industries in the country today began on a small scale. The smaller communities of America are attracting the attention of industrialists, who are anxious to get away from the trials and tribulations that confront them in congested, industrial centers. Any small city that has an idle factory building, nowadays, should be able to find a thriving industry to occupy it.

Land Of Freedom

IT is natural for the world to find renewed interest in the ancient and historic land of Greece, mother of our western civilization, as another birthday of its freedom rolls around. This is the modern freedom regained by Greece from the Turks after many vicissitudes, some 125 years ago—a freedom which has been lost again and again in a melancholy drama reaching back through nearly 2,500 years of history, but never losing the sparkle and glory of the Greek tradition and heritage.

It is a unique fact that after such a vast period of time, and so many eras that would have broken the hearts and destroyed the essential characteristics of almost any nation, Greece still lives. She still speaks the language from which so much of our tongue is derived. She still has the spirit of the beauty-loving men who built the Parthenon, created men's finest arts and taught the human race to think, and to record its thoughts in terms that still live.

Such a language and nation should never be allowed to perish. It is rather pathetic to see a nation with so much inner strength made the pawn of two great powers in their struggle for control of inland seas.

Never should the Isles of Greece be forgotten. Even now there is a new surge of ancient freedom in many lands from that noble source.

Canning Sugar

WOMEN in quest of extra sugar have discovered that the OPA meant what it said when Stamp No. 9 was recently made valid for five pounds of canning sugar. In New York and other cities in the North they rushed out to get the five pounds and found their grocers didn't have it to sell.

Quite according to plan, says the OPA, canning sugar has been shipped to the South, where strawberries are now ready for preserving. As fruits ripen and become available for canning in other parts of the country, the extra sugar supplies will be sent on schedule.

Two basic facts of sugar rationing are unchanged: that sugar is short, and that the government wants to encourage canning because of the general world food shortage. So for the time being, there's no more for the cup of tea. Next winter, however, the can of peaches on the pantry shelf will come in very handy.

The Hitchhiking Menace

THE sad experience of two Gulliver women, who gave a ride to two youths while returning from a trip to Manistiquette this week, is just another example of the evils of hitchhiking.

If motorists would simply ignore the ride thumpers, they would discourage the hitchhiking practice and prevent much trouble for themselves. Standing alongside the highways, the hitchhikers often are causes of serious traffic accidents. Many motorists have been murdered, slugged and robbed by them.

In Wisconsin, there is a law that prohibits the soliciting of rides on the highways. The statute is circumvented, however, by the wise hitchhikers who beg for transportation from motorists who stop at service stations.

Whether enactment of such a law in Michigan would be helpful is a debatable question. Much more effective would be the refusal by motorists to give rides to strangers.

Russia and UNO

THE action of the Russian delegate to the UNO security council, Andrei Gromyko, in walking out on council deliberations Wednesday certainly cannot be construed to mean that the United Nations Organization is doomed to failure in its noble cause of world peace.

It was extremely unfortunate that Gromyko took the Russian defeat on the Iranian problem as an occasion to walk out on council deliberations because that action served only to create additional suspicion of Russian's diplomatic sincerity.

To the average American, Gromyko's reaction to the Russian defeat in the fight to defer consideration of the Iranian question smacked very much like the case of the lad who picked up his ball and went home because his playmates wouldn't let him pitch.

If the UNO is going to effectively serve the cause of world peace, it must necessarily tackle the dangerous problems that threaten world peace. That was the position taken by the council when it refused to delay consideration of the Iranian problem. Any other position would have discredited UNO and would have left no hope at all that the organization was equal to the task for which it was established.

Despite all this, Russia has given strong indications that it will continue to participate in the council's discussions on other issues.

TINKERING.

(From the Hartford (Conn.) Courant)

Man is now living in an age in which for the first time he is able to tamper with the very fundamentals of the universe. His experiments with atomic energy, as has repeatedly been remarked, raise at least the possibility of setting off a so-called chain reaction of increasingly violent explosions sufficient to exterminate all life on this planet.

Not content with this prospect, man is reaching out beyond the globe he inhabits, prying into the secrets of interstellar space. The successful transmission of radar signals to the moon and back, discussed in these columns, is merely a herald of more enterprising explorations to come.

Already British scientists, spurred on by our success in spanning the quarter million miles to our satellite, are attempting to send radio pulses as far as the sun, 93 million miles distant.

They expect that if they are successful in this effort, the result will be solar emissions in the form of exceptionally intense burst of radio waves from sunspots. In view of the wide range of troubles that sunspots are already credited with stirring up, however, this would seem to be a rather uncertain phenomenon with which to experiment.

A statistician estimates the average man speaks 12,000,000 words a year. There must be more bachelors than we figured.

HERE'S HOW THEY TALK

(Speech Portrait No. 23)

GEN. JAMES H. DOOLITTLE

Voice, vibrant high baritone of extraordinary expressiveness. The color, resonance, and flexibility of the Doolittle voice results from correct forward placement—in the masque. Such timbre is rare except among speakers who have had voice training under a skilled instructor.

Enunciation, accurate and urbane, but not consciously "pretty." That is to say, our flying general speaks in cultured accents which ring true, and which do not suggest that he has borrowed a high hat for the occasion. Once, in a letter to me, Cecil B. DeMille, referred to the microphone as "the world's greatest lie-detector." He meant, of course, that the pretensions and affections of swollen speech are made all the more apparent by radio's pitiless faculty for unstuffing shirts. It's a vital point for all broadcasters to ponder on.

Style, as masculine as his own military bearing. His speech pattern is General American, as one might expect from an

World Events Analyzed

BY MARQUIS CHILDS

Washington—Between President Truman and the admirals who run the Navy, something very like a feud is going on over unification of the armed forces. It is an extraordinary spectacle, this tug-of-war between the commander-in-chief and the Navy's top brass.

When the President declared unequivocally for unification of the Army, Navy and Air Forces in a common department of defense, the debate was supposed to end. He asked the admirals and the generals to accept this as policy, at least until Congress had time to act one way or the other.

Outwardly, the admirals have kept silent. But, as one official in the White House put it, they have gone underground. Their propaganda among members of Congress has continued unabated.

—WANTED PAULEY'S HELP—

It was against this background that the President was so eager for the confirmation of Edwin W. Pauley as under-secretary of the Navy. That phase of the Pauley nomination never came to light during the bitter controversy that ended with the withdrawal of Pauley's name after it was obvious he could not be confirmed. What lay behind the President's stubborn determination to put Pauley over has never been explained.

In the first place, he wanted someone in the Navy department who would be absolutely loyal to him. Pauley, the President believed, would be able to resist the blandishments and the persuasions of the admirals.

Secondly, the President believed that Pauley would have the ruthlessness, the drive and the capacity to push through unification in spite of the opposition of the men who wear the stars. He had been impressed with Pauley's performance as head of the reparations mission to Moscow. On this point, the President had the hearty support of W. Averell Harriman, then ambassador to Russia. Harriman, newly appointed ambassador to England, admires Pauley's drive and ability.

When Pauley was defeated, it was in one sense a defeat for unification. Or at any rate, the going would be tougher for unification.

—ADMIRALS GROW BOLD—

The admirals have become extraordinarily bold. They do not hesitate to go to their allies on Capitol Hill to circumvent the expressed wishes of their commander-in-chief.

They have, of course, very important allies. One is Rep. Carl Vinson of Georgia, chairman of the House Naval Affairs committee, who has become through the years a kind of honorary admiral. He wears the uniform in spirit if not in actuality.

Chairman of the Senate Naval Affairs committee is Senator David I. Walsh of Massachusetts. Walsh is 73 years old. He is tired and indifferent. For this reason, he tends to follow the line of least resistance.

The latest battle in the war between the White House and the Navy is over the size of the Navy's appropriation. The Navy's maneuvering in this matter has riled the President more than almost anything else that has happened during his year in the White House.

Over the Navy's postwar position and the amount of money it would take to finance it, the President spent a great deal of time. He devoted more care and thought to it than to any other budgetary problem. The Navy had asked for $6,250,000,000. The President, with the aid of his staff in the bureau of the budget, cut this back to $3,900,000,000. Later, it was raised to $4,250,000,000.

The last figure represented the total the commander-in-chief believed adequate to maintain the Navy as a proper peacetime level. This computation was based on the relationship of the Navy to the other branches of national defense.

Immediately, a backstairs quarrel began. Budget director Harold Smith insisted that, if Secretary of the Navy Forrestal and the admirals were to go directly to Congress to ask for the original sum, the whole system of presidential budget-keeping would be jeopardized. Other departments would take this as a precedent and would run up to the Capitol with their own requests. Forrestal finally agreed not to testify for more money.

However, Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, chief of Naval operations, did go before the perfect congressional sounding board. That was not the appropriations committee but Vinson's Naval Affairs committee. Nimitz made it sound as though the cut had been a bookkeeper's cut.

That is the present propaganda line of the clique of admirals who run the Navy. The President is hopping mad and the issue sooner or later will come to a showdown.

All-American General. He speaks with assurance and brisk forcefulness, and his choice of words, especially in extemporaneous speaking, is noteworthy. There is no fumbling; there are no distracting "uh's." General Jimmy "sells" what he has to say.

Pronunciation, very good. During the broadcast checked for this article (American Forum of the Air) Doolittle mispronounced but one word. And, amazingly, it is the one word with which history will always associate him—the word airplane, which he called "air-o-plane."

There is no such word as "air-o-plane." The British form is aeroplane, pronounced: AY-er-oh-plane. But the correct American word is airplane, officially adopted by the U. S. Army and Navy and Bureau of Standards during World War One.

Score: Voice 25; enunciation, 24; style 25; pronunciation, 23. Total 97. Rating, excellent.

Next week: Captain Harold E. Stassen. (Your nominations are invited.)

NORTHERN LIGHTS—People in town and country, if they took the time to look, saw in recent nights some of the finest Northern Lights displays of the year. So accustomed have we become to such "sky shows" that they seldom attract more than a passing glance. Few of us realize that they continue to be one of the outstanding enigmas to science.

Dunathan

Few of us know, also, that there are Southern Lights as well as Northern Lights, and that persons who live near the equator seldom see either Aurora Borealis (Northern Lights) or Aurora Australis, the corresponding light seen in the southern hemisphere.

CAULDRON EFFECT—One night earlier this week there was a particularly fine demonstration of Aurora Borealis. From all points around the horizon the flaming spears of light shod in a swirling stream of flashing points that twisted and turned as molten metal swirls in the center of a vast cauldron. The sky was an ever-changing mosaic of pastel colors as the lights played their ghostly game of attack and retreat in the arena of the night, and made a vibrant kaleidoscope of patterns against the velvet backdrop of the cosmic stage.

Hollywood will borrow Aurora Borealis some night for a premier showing of a Dorothy Lamour movie.

OVER MAGNETIC POLE—Northern polar lights are usually seen beginning a short time after sunset and continuing sometimes through the night.

The path of light usually forms a fiery arch across the northern sky, centered approximately over the magnetic pole, with its ends on the east and west horizons, and its streams of light ascending from a haze or cloud sometimes to a point almost directly overhead.

Its rays are transient and constantly in motion, varying in color (it says in the encyclopedia) from a greenish hue or a pale yellow to a deep, blood red, and its shapes are infinite in number.

MOST FREQUENTLY HERE—The aurora is seen most frequently in the zone of the northern hemisphere, and has its center near the southern part of Hudson Bay. The aurora is observed less frequently farther south, and near the equator it is rarely seen.

CAN YOU HEAR THEM?—Closing the encyclopedia for a moment, let's consider the purely personal phenomena of a friend of ours who stoutly maintains that he can "hear" the Northern Lights. He has "heard" them not once but several times.

"You have to be away from town where they are other noises," he reported. "I stood by my house one night watching the Northern Lights, and I began to hear a whirling sound. Sometimes it sounded like the swish of long waves along the shore, at other times like the faint whirr of an electric motor."

Asked if other members of his family had ever reported "hearing" the Northern Lights, the man from the county said no, that he told his wife about it but she hadn't been impressed.

"She told me I kept out of taverns I wouldn't hear such things," he said sheepishly. At the Chief of Police John J. Tolan had the satisfaction yesterday of reading in news dispatches from Washington, that one of the measures he fathered when the Michigan Safety committee was framing this state's model traffic ordinance has been recommended nationally by Secretary Herbert Hoover of the federal department of commerce. The regulation prohibits the issuance of drivers' licenses to any person not old enough to be taken into the ordinary criminal courts for violations of traffic laws.

Manistiquette—Floyd Croy, 18, of Newberry, was brought to the local hospital yesterday with an injured knee, the result of an accident at the Nelson camp near Blaney, where he is employed.

same time he declared that what he had heard was not alcohol coursing through his mental radiator.

LEGENDS OF THE LIGHTS—In every country in the northern hemisphere there are "legends of the Northern Lights." The American Indians had them, and so did the people of the Scandinavian countries.

In every case the lights were ascribed to the "shades" or spirits of the departed. These spirits, it was believed, came forth on clear nights to dance across the sky (if they were peaceful folk), or to fight ghostly battles if they were warriors.

Later years brought new theories and science took a hand in an effort to determine the cause of the dancing lights. It was believed that the dancing lights were reflections of the sun on the ice-capped polar regions.

STILL PUZZLED—Various explanations have been offered to account for the auroras.

The theory most commonly advanced is that the displays are caused by the encounter of electrons from the sun with gases, such as krypton and nitrogen, in the upper rarified atmosphere. The displays occur at altitudes of 60 to 450 miles, but the base of the light streamers sometimes reach nearly to the earth.

It has long been observed that the magnetic needle is subject to disturbances during the appearance of the aurora, and that magnetic storms are an accompaniment of sun-spot activity.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON

Washington.—Story behind the recent White House visit of GOP Representative William Lemke of North Dakota is that President Truman may liberalize the drafting of farmers in order to aid the bumper harvest so vitally needed this year.

The North Dakota congressman told Truman that many farms in the northwest are critically short-handed due to the drafting of only sons when they reach the age of 18.

Lemke also pointed out that large numbers of older sons who have served in the armed forces are not returning to the farm. They are taking fancier jobs in the cities instead. In some cases, the younger brothers are being induced, though sorely needed on the farm.

"Draft boards in my state are taking all unmarried men when they reach draft age, regardless of their essentiality," said Lemke.

"I am aware of the problem," Truman assured him. "The same thing is happening in my own state of Missouri. Some of the draft boards are too stringent in the case of farm workers."

"I don't think anyone should be deferred at the expense of men now in the army who are entitled to get out," continued Lemke. However, I believe the army could find between 200,000 and 300,000 non-essential men who are able to serve but who have been deferred because of some physical defect."

Truman said he was inclined to agree and that he planned to go over the whole draft situation soon again with Chief of Staff General Eisenhower and Selective Service Chief General Hershey. Special emphasis will be given to essential farm workers, he said, adding that the army chiefs would be asked to work out a solution with local draft boards.

—ATOM TEST—
The scientists had their own reason for postponing the atomic bomb test, and this was the one which finally controlled—namely, the impossibility of measuring the underwater atomic explosion until a machine is perfected.

At the last cabinet meeting, however, President Truman brought up an additional reason—the fact that he couldn't spare the Democratic senators and congressmen who wanted to witness the test in mid-Pacific.

This, however, was no problem for Postmaster General Bob Hannegan.

"If you'll let me pick them," he said, "it might be an excellent thing to hold the test at this time."

—VETERANS GO BARE-BACK—
If you are puzzled as to why returned veterans can't buy suits, the confidential government figures on woolen and worsted goods will give you the answer.

Briefly, it boils down to the fact that more woolens and worsteds are being woven than almost ever before—but they are all going to the ladies. Women's clothing bring higher prices, so the poor veteran is being left out in the cold.

If you don't believe it, look at the figures. During the last quarter of 1945, the production of woolens and worsted shot up 13 per cent over the previous quarter, and 31 per cent over the 1939 average. In other words, we were making more woolens at the end of 1945 than before the war started.

OLDER MEN KILL FOR JEALOUSY

Younger Women Killers Murder While Enraged In Argument

St. Louis—Among killers, it is the older men who murder women to avenge acts of infidelity or unrequited love. Younger men are more likely to kill men instead of women, and to kill because of an insult during an argument.

Study of 200 murders, sentenced to the State Prison of Southern Michigan during a five-year period, was reported here today before the meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science by Dr. Irwin August Berg and Dr. Vernon Fox, of the University of Illinois.

Murderers are older than the average for all the prisoners, they found. The average age for killers is 34 as compared to the general average of a little over 29. They also have less education and lower intelligence.

Sex murders by older men were much more violent than those committed for other motives. But among younger men, just the opposite was true.

Lack of Vitamin B
Lack of enough meat and whole wheat and other vitamin B foods will make even healthy young men develop serious psychoneurotic illness unless they can be given doses of vitamin B to make up for the deficiency.

This was indicated by a report before the meeting by Dr. Harold Guezkov, Dr. Josef Brozek and Dr. Ansel Keys, of the University of Minnesota.

Striking and consistent effects on the mind and personality of lack of vitamin B showed up in an experiment conducted by the Minnesota scientists, in which eight normal young men lived for 161 days on a partly restricted intake of B vitamins and then for 23 days on a diet acutely deficient in these vitamins ordinarily supplied by meat, whole grain cereals and legumes.

Depression, hysteria, and obsessive worry over health, with timidity and too much emotion; these were the personality ills due to the acute vitamin deficiency.

Even the partial lack of 3-complex vitamins had its effects on the nerves of the young men. Although they themselves were not aware of the change and rated themselves as just as well-adjusted as usual, tests showed an increase in nervous tension and a loss of spontaneity on the deficient diet.

After the "famine," dosage with thiamin, one of the B vitamins, for ten days produced rapid recovery.

Although the personality deterioration was consistent for all the young men, the tests indicated that those with better personality to start with had somewhat better resistance to the food deprivation.

Treatment Impairs Memory
Electric shock treatment, used widely for mental illness, causes an impairment in both memory and intellectual functioning, Dr. Joseph Zubin, of the New York State Psychiatric Institute, reported.

His conclusions are based on a five-year study of patients taking the treatment at the Institute.

The loss in both memory and intellectual functioning occurs after the third shock treatment, Dr. Zubin said. Except in a small proportion of cases, the memory loss gradually is restored after the treatments are stopped.

In the case of the intellectual impairment, however, it is not yet known whether the patient ever regains his level of ability before the treatments.

There is a slowing up of learning ability after about the third treatment. Memory, in the sense of ability to recognize, is not much affected except for those things only recently observed. But ability to recall is severely impaired.

A patient may recognize a procedure without having any feeling of having done it or seen it before. When asked to do a task he has previously learned, for example, he will deny any knowledge of how to go about it. It is completely new to him and he claims that what he does is just guess.

But his "guess" is correct more than 90 per cent of the time.

U.S. Bids For Postwar Tourist, Shipping Trade

By S. BURTON HEATH
New York (NEA)—American passenger lines are going after transoceanic travel business with a fleet of new, fast, de luxe comfort liners and a wary weather eye on competition from the air.

The companies believe a tourist boom is in sight, on top of very heavy business travel. They are determined to dispel the old idea that foreign ships give more comfort and better service than American. They see no good reason why our passenger ships should not be made as much superior to others as American hotels are superior to those found elsewhere.

Our 11 major operators are planning on adding at least 89 new passenger carriers, ranging from combination ships with accommodation for 12 persons each up to luxury liners with space for 400 to 500 guests.

The Maritime Commission is talking about 11 vessels that the Shipbuilders Council of America describes as superliners.

Details are not yet available, but it is understood that they would have a length of 1000 feet, a tonnage of around 37,500, at least 29 knots speed, would provide for 1,000 passengers, and would cost from $22,500,000 to $25,000,000 each.

These vessels would be ultra modern in provision for comfort and equipped with safety devices developed during the war.

The Merchant Marine Institute, trade association of ship operators, prefers not to call such craft superliners—a term that it reserves for such giants as the Queens Mary and Elizabeth, the late Normandie, the Ile de France, the Europa, and the war-torn Bremen, Rex and Conte di Savoia.

We have no intention of going into the superliner business in that sense, the Maritime Commission, which holds a tight rein on our operators by its control over the subsidies granted to offset high American operating costs, is against them.

Ships for Both Oceans
The U. S. Lines hope to get two of the proposed big ships, presumably for operation to Europe or to the Far East in conjunction with the 22-knot America, the 21-knot Washington, and five other passenger craft.

Shipping men conjecture that the others would go into the Pacific trade, with the American President Line (formerly Dollar) and the Matson Line regarded as likely operators.

Aleco plans on three 19-knot luxury liners to carry up to 500 passengers each and three new 17-knot 15,000-ton combination ships for the Caribbean tourist business in which it was just getting started when war intervened.

American Export has asked for the ex-Italian Conte Grande, Conte Biancamano, Saturnia and Vulcania, all 23,000 tonners, now U. S. troop transports, to use on the run formerly made by the Italian Line.

Moore-McCormack, which plans to restore the 20,000-ton Argentina, Brazil and Uruguay to the South American east coast run, has ordered two large new liners and plans to build three more.

United Fruit is replacing the third of its Great White Fleet that was sunk during the war. The replacements are to include two 18-20 knot luxury liners that are very unorthodox in the blueprints, having lounge, bar, veranda and other public rooms forward, where passengers can see where they are going, rather than aft where one can see only where he already has been.

The Grace Line is building nine new 52-passenger ships for the South American west coast run, by way of the Caribbean and the Panama Canal. Grace lost all but two of its Santa class boats during the war but hopes to get those back soon from the government.

The Matson Line is adding air conditioning to its two Lurline class liners on the Hawaiian and Australia-New Zealand run. Its Lurline, Matsonia, Mariposa and Monterey all survived the war.

The American President Lines, in process of being sold by the government to private operators, is acquiring two P-2 transport and building two similar liners for use this year. It plans to add three large, fast luxury liners by 1948, and intends resuming its round-the-world service with two pre-war combination liners and five chartered C-4 (transport) ships.

This is just a bird's eye glimpse of a few companies' plans for going after post-war business—offering comfortable staterooms, air-conditioning on tropic runs, and relative speed, to offset the speed with which air lines are seeking to acquire both business and tourist patronage.

The British are not going to stand by idly, and see us walk off with business. They start with a fleet of name ships headed by the Queens Mary and Elizabeth and including the new Mauretania, Franconia, Britannic, Samaria and Scythia.

The French hope to salvage the Ile de France, the de Grasse and the Pasteur, and are talking about three new superliners which American shipping men think are in a rather distant future.

Holland still has the Nieuw Amsterdam, Veendam and Volendam; Canada the Dutchesses of Bedford and of Richmond besides the old Empress of Australia; Norway has the old Stavangerfjord and Bergensfjord.

Six More Gladstone Women Veterans Of Late War Reported
The names of six other Gladstone young women who served in various branches of the armed forces auxiliaries in World War II were reported yesterday in addition to the list published in Thursday's issue of the Press.

They are: (Sp) June Rosenblum, Waves; T/5 Doraldine LaLande (Army); T/5 Lucille Rabitoy (Army); Sgt. Helen Masterson, (Marine Corps); Sgt. Josephine Kinkella (Army); and PM Angela Kinkella (Waves).

The original list of Delta county women veterans published was not purported to be complete and included only the names of women who had copies of their service release papers sent to the draft board headquarters here.

Women, of course, were not registered for service and were not compelled to report their enlistments or discharges to draft officials.

Foreign War Vets Name E. J. Kallio Commander for '46

E. J. Kallio was named commander of Hiawatha Post 2998, Veterans of Foreign Wars, at the organization's first postwar election meeting held here at the V. F. W. clubrooms this week.

With the exception of post commander and chaplain all officers elected to serve during 1946 are veterans of World War II.

Other officers named include: senior vice commander, John Connelly; junior vice commander, Cleve Moore; quartermaster, Don Guindon; chaplain, Archie Wood; post advocate, Albin Krusell; surgeon, Dr. William LeMire; trustee, Arnold Thimling.

Commander Kallio outlined the organization's plans for the year in a talk following the election. He said that work would begin shortly on extension and remodeling of the clubrooms, and that there was every indication of a banner year for the post whose membership is now well over the 500 mark.

Club Custodian Bob Heminger reported that the key system is now in effect and requested members to register and secure their keys.

Members interested in softball are asked to leave their names with the club custodian, George LaCrosse, who is recently appointed team manager and is now organizing the V. F. W. outfit.

ATLAS PLYWOOD BUYS ROBBINS

New Equipment Will Be Installed In Newberry Plant

Atlas Plywood Corporation announced in Boston the acquisition of plant buildings, equipment and properties at Newberry from the Robbins company of Rhineland, Wis., manufacturers of hardwood flooring.

Several hundred workers will be employed in the Newberry plant, the indicated output of which, the corporation said, "has been sold on a definite contract for a long time ahead."

The plant is expected to add about ten per cent to Atlas' capacity and marks the company's sixth expansion in the last 12 months.

Installation of additional equipment for the plant's conversion to plywood and cleating production, as well as packing case fabrication, will be undertaken and packing case output is expected to get under way by mid-summer.

The firm has 50,000 acres of timberland in Luce county in the vicinity of Newberry, where logging operations are now being conducted. The Northwestern Plywood & Veneer company of Gladstone is also affiliated with the Atlas Corporation.

Harry Buchman Will Be State Senate Candidate

Harry Buchman, prominent Rapid River business man, yesterday announced he would be a candidate for the Republican nomination for state senator from the 30th senatorial district in the coming primary election.

Two years ago, Buchman lost the Republican nomination by about two hundred votes to State Senator George Girschbach, Sault Ste. Marie, in a three-cornered contest, in which James Spies of Menominee also was a candidate. Senator Girschbach recently announced he would seek the Republican gubernatorial candidacy. Buchman is the first to announce his candidacy for Girschbach's post in the state senate.

Buchman was born in Rapid River, attended the Rapid River public schools, and was graduated from Michigan State College. During the first World war, he enlisted in the U. S. Navy and attended the Officers Material School at Pelham Bay, N. Y.

For the past 20 years, Buchman has been active in the business and civic life of the Rapid River community. Besides conducting a mercantile store, he operates two farms and extensive logging operations. He also has been associated with the Rapid River Cooperative creamery. Buchman is a member of the Masonville township board. Fraternally, he is affiliated with the Lions club, Elks and Masons.

SORRY—

Right when more people than ever are asking for NEW GOOD LUCK—the margarine with the fresh country flavor—there's a shortage of the choice vegetable oils used in making it.

We hate to see even a single one of Good Luck's good friends disappointed, but it is somewhat comforting to know that Good Luck has so many friends that grocers just can't seem to keep it in stock.

The only suggestion we can make—and it's the usual one—is to keep asking for NEW GOOD LUCK if your grocer happens to be out of it when you ask the first time.

He's getting regular shipments of this delicious margarine that makes good foods taste better—but those shipments aren't as big as we wish they could be. And NEW GOOD LUCK is one of the fastest selling brands your grocer carries.

OREGON SEEKS TOURIST TRADE

Makes Plans To Cut In On Postwar Travel Boom In West

Portland, Ore., March 27 (AP)—Oregon expects to cut itself a thick slice of the multi-billion dollar tourist cake the next few years.

A Bancroft Wells, head of the Portland Chamber of Commerce tourist and convention department, figures that within five years visitors will supplant lumber as Oregon's No. 2 industry, second only to agriculture.

Tourists already are the third biggest money-maker: $51,000,000 in the last normal year—1941. But the men organizing Oregon's first state-wide travel campaign consider that just a crumb, now that a new state committee named by Gov. Earl Snell is working to get the travelers to stick. Right now, their problem isn't so much getting the tourists as finding a place to put them. Oregon resorts desperately are hammering up more rooms. A Coe Bay hotel which was a semi-finished skeleton years ago for 20 years is opening. Every motor court in the state is expanding. There'll be 15 percent more accommodations this year, many more by 1947.

What the promoters want is to make the tourist industry a permanent thing. They've got it calculated down to mills. The average tourist spends $12 a day. Every tourist dollar yields 5.35 cents profit to the community.

The state highway commission has appropriated $215,664 for tourist promotion. The Portland Chamber of Commerce plans to shell out $150,000 on it every two years, already has collected $80,000.

They're starting by educating the tourist. At Bend, the Chamber of Commerce conducted a school for restaurateurs and hotel clerks. At Grants Pass, service station operators set up a clinic on how to be kind to the tourist. Similar courses in other towns, for police, state employees, school pupils are expected to convert the state into a mass welcome committee and information bureau.

All this is part of the campaign, No. 1 item, variously known as "Oregonizing Oregon" or "Making Oregon Host-Comscious," which includes more native woods and architecture in buildings, western decorations instead of cactus or chrome and more local foods.

The promoters' No. 2 item is to provide more places to stay and more things to do.

They're setting up a calendar of all Oregon's traditional events: festivals, rodeos, regattas, fishing derbies, skiing tournaments, the sawing, high-climbing and log rolling contests which typify the lumber country.

The calendar will provide ready-made entertainment 365 days a year for visitors who get bored with hunting, fishing, skiing, or swimming.

Enticing tourists to the state trails last on the campaign agenda. Inquiries are so heavy already that the highway commission stopped advertising, and promoters, casting a hungry eye on the $550,000,000 tourists spent annually in prewar California, will work on that later.

FIRE DESTROYS WAREHOUSE—A two-story warehouse on the Escanaba Veneer Company location was destroyed by fire Wednesday afternoon. The building had been used by the Birds Eye Veneer company as a sorting shed.

Factory-Made Houses Are In Huge Demand

By WOODWARD B. NORTON

New York—It's now or never for prefabricated house manufacturers.

The demand for anything with four walls and a roof has effectively dissipated general pre-war shyness toward factory-built homes.

The Government, mindful of the tremendous job done on temporary war housing by prefabricators, has found it expedient to channel materials to these mass producers of dwellings. And the Office of Price Administration recently raised price ceilings on such homes.

But strikes and wage-price squabbles, which have retarded industrial reconversion generally, have held output of prefabricated homes to a small fraction of what was anticipated.

One leading firm in this field, Precision-Built Homes, Inc., has produced only 50 homes so far this year, although it has a capacity for 10,000.

Gunnison Homes, Inc., a pioneer on the prefabricated field, has a factory capable of turning out 1,600 units a year. Deliveries were scheduled to begin early in February but slow industrial reconversion postponed the first shipment until last week.

Such a showing is in sharp contrast to earlier optimistic hopes in the industry. The Prefabricated Home Manufacturers' Institute surveyed 50 members operating in 30 states at the beginning of the year. It found that on a single shift basis the industry was equipped to build 150,000 homes, 30,000 of them in the first quarter of this year.

Now conservative people in this prefabricated field think their industry will be lucky to produce 50,000 homes in all 1946.

The prefabricators' chief difficulty today is common to all the building industry—shortage of materials.

Longer range problems will work on that later.

Urban "zoning" laws are in many cases an even tougher problem. Written originally to guarantee construction soundness and safety against fire in densely populated areas, building codes effectively block prefabricators from some of their readiest markets.

Rush Into New Market

As in most new and promising fields, many firms are rushing into the market. Each has his own "best" solution to the housing shortage. They range from Precision-Built Homes Inc., a firm disclaiming it is a "prefabricator" of homes with the slogan "mass production applied to conventional construction," to Fuller Houses, Inc., which markets a hexagonal-shaped version of the Dymaxion Dwelling Machine (which was popularized in the 1920's as the "house of the future").

Between these two extremes are found dozens of prefabricated house manufacturers. Some are big, many small. Some are well established, more are of recent origin. All hope to make mass production of housing the country's largest industry—and from it their business fortunes.

In the forefront of the factory home field is Precision-Built Homes, Inc., brain child of its president, F. Vaux Wilson, Jr., and an outgrowth of the Homasote Co. of Trenton, N. J., manufacturer of wall and insulation boards since 1909.

Called the Pace Setter

An independent survey, undertaken by leading manufacturers of building materials and home furnishings, had this to say of the company: "We are inclined to list this firm as the true leader and pace setter of the industry (because Mr. Wilson seems to have a clearer idea than any of the others as to where his firm is going—and a clearer idea of how they will get there.)"

Most prefabrication today, Mr. Wilson says, means production of a stock house made from standardized panels on individual, standardized jigs. This limits design and style, he says, since the panels are usually four feet wide by eight feet high and can only be put together in certain ways. "It's like building with blocks."

In precision-building, such as that done by Mr. Wilson's firm, sections up to 20 feet long constructed on universal jigs, adaptable to making a varied number of parts, enable an owner to have any size and type home he wishes. There is only one restriction on the architecture of a Precision-Built Home: Its parts must be multiples of four inches.

Since Precision-Built Homes Corp. was organized as a division of Homasote in 1935 to sell the company's wall boards, $400,000 has been spent on a continuing research program. The company now has ready for operation a device which will produce wall sections—completely finished with door and window openings—at the rate of 20 linear feet per minute. A floor panel machine will lay finished flooring at the rate of 160 square feet a minute. It takes a first class carpenter and helper

But, mother, why do we have to clean the whole house every year? Don't you think we're getting into a rut, making ourselves so automatic?

Vic Flint

Maybe there's a little Puritan in me, but I've always mistrusted something for nothing.

NO, MR. FLINT, THAT DOESN'T SETTLE IT. ONE OF MY BUSINESS CARDS WAS FOUND IN DICE'S POCKET, THAT INVOLVES ME.

IF YOUR LITTLE JOB DID WITH DICE, I CAN STILL EARN THAT $500.

MAY I INQUIRE HOW, MR. FLINT?

VIRTUOUS, MR. FLINT, BUT HARDLY SENSIBLE. LET ME GIVE YOU A LITTLE ADVICE.

I CAN LOOK FOR DICE'S MURDERER.

POKING YOUR NOSE INTO DICE'S DEATH MIGHT PROVE UNHEALTHY. IT MIGHT EVEN PROVE FATAL. IS THAT CLEAR, MR. FLINT?

IT'S NOT ONLY CLEAR, MR. FLINT, IT'S TRANSPARENT.

Offers Papyrus Secrets, "German War Reparations"

AP Newsfeatures

Berlin—Hugo Steinbiller, the inventor of a process of converting wild papyrus weed into textile fiber, believes that if sufficient German experts were sent to central Africa to develop this process commercially they could make enough money to pay off war reparations to the Allied governments.

In Africa, he said, "millions of dollars worth of papyrus is going to waste when, as a matter of fact, it might be used both for making cellulose and for extracting a fiber adaptable to spinning just like any other fiber."

If only the Allies would entrust German experts with commercial development of papyrus for reparations payment, said Steinbiller, "I should be most happy to turn the results of my researches, covering many years' work, over to the undertaking."

Steinbiller, in an interview, said, strangely enough, "nobody today is exploiting this raw material although we know that the ancient Egyptians derived their power from such exploitation." Papyrus, he declared, gave Egypt's pharaohs fabulous wealth, and later became the greatest source of wealth for the Roman empire.

"The Egyptians, finding that the wild papyrus stalks did not yield enough material to satisfy their needs, even planted papyrus in the swampy delta of the Nile and along the shores of this stream. This cultivation project furnished work for hundreds of thousands of laborers."

Sells Largely to Contractors

Products among the middle-ground prefabricators is American Houses, Inc. John C. Taylor, Jr., president, says: "We think prefabrication is a better way to build a home." Although American's panels are standardized, they can be put together in various ways. The company's houses retail for from $3,000 to $20,000. Present capacity is around 7,000 units annually.

American sells largely to contractors. Its officials say a man buying housing for other people—rent for instance—listens willingly to any suggestion designed to save him money. He isn't bothered by the kind of whims a home buyer has.

The company is now working on plans for a "big little house," designed to be easily adapted to two people "when the kids go away to school."

Like every other prefabricated home builder, American is swamped with orders. "We can't answer 10% of our inquiries," Mr. Taylor says. He has to set quotas on new customers.

American now has plants, all relatively small, in Utah, Ohio, Texas, Pennsylvania, New Hampshire, Virginia and Tennessee.

The company hasn't run into any of the stock problems of prefabricators, Mr. Taylor says. All American plants are A.F.L. closed shops and labor cooperation has been exemplary, he says. They've had no trouble either, with real estate men and mortgages, he reports.

Gunnison Homes, Inc., possibly the most widely publicized of all prefabricated housing firms, is reaching for the new market in another way. President Foster Gunnison, who wants to be the Henry Ford of the industry, secured the backing of U. S. Steel Corp., which took over Government homes and laid plans for a series of central factories to serve dealers in every U. S. city of 9,000 population or over.

Dealers who handled the 4,500 Gunnison homes built before the war will get the first of his new houses. Later, when production is increased, dealers trained in Gunnison's own school will also be signed to handle the houses.

Thousands of would-be dealers from nearly every Middle West community, Mr. Gunnison says, are on the waiting list to sell his houses, which will be marketed in the $4,000-$9,000 range.

Sells Bungalow Type Houses

The E. F. Hodgson Co. of Boston, concentrates on the northern eastern section of the U. S. Its houses run to bungalow-type, sold before plumbing, heating, erection, foundation and wiring costs are figured. These expenses add from 40% to 50% to the list price of the dwelling. Frank M. Roberts, general manager, says.

Among prominent newcomers to the field are Shelter Industries, Inc., which will manufacture and distribute completely equipped and erected houses at from $5,000 to $6,000, and Anchorage Homes, Inc., which is building at Westfield, Mass., what it says will be "the largest prefabricated housing plant in the world."

Shelter should be turning out 200 homes a year by the end of 1946, and should average 2,000 a month in 1947, says Donald Deskey, firm president.

W. W. Rausch, president of Anchorage Homes, has a background in conventional construction, but became interested in prefabrication during the war. He plans to sell a wide variety of Cape Cod Colonial type houses in New England, New York, New Jersey and eastern Pennsylvania.

Anchorage should begin to make money when production, scheduled to begin in April, reaches an annual rate of 1,000 units, Mr. Rausch says. His plant has a capacity of 3,000 units a year.

Henry J. Kaiser has his finger in the prefabricated pie, too—through Kaiser Community Homes, Inc., which operates in southern California. He hopes to be turning out 30 units a day, he says, early in April.

TOURIST BOOM IS ANTICIPATED

Operators Worry About Scarcity Of Accommodations

On the basis of reservations already on hand, the volume of tourist business in this area will be the heaviest in history during the coming season. Most of the resorts are completely booked for July and August and have turned down hundreds of requests for reservations. In general, however, ample facilities are available for vacationists in the early season and after the opening of school in September.

A major problem will be the inadequacy of accommodations for the tremendous influx of visitors expected in mid-summer. Many resorts had planned expansion of facilities this year but the new CPA order banning such construction will forestall any large expansion. A number of overnight cabins, started before the ban became effective, however, will probably be completed.

G. H. Earle, general manager of the Blaney Park resort, reported yesterday that although volume of business will be large, operating costs have increased so sharply that net revenues will be less than last season. The Blaney Park resort enjoyed an unusually large tourist season in 1945, despite wartime restrictions.

Earle declared that OPA restrictions are making the problem of tourist resort management particularly difficult. He declared that current shortages in building materials, in meats and many other commodities are the fault of the OPA restrictions.

Earle declared that inability to secure material for new homes to accommodate employees at Blaney Park has necessitated the use of guest accommodations at the resort for resort employees.

Resort operators at Escanaba, Manistique and other communities in this area also have reported large numbers of reservations for mid-summer. Most of the reservations were placed a year ago and operators will have to check them to determine whether they should still be held.

One Tower Handles All Broadcasting, FM, PTN And Others
Nuttley, N. J.—A 300-foot, streamlined "Microwave Tower" under construction here may be the forerunner of future community broadcasting towers.

The ultra-modern experimental structure will be constructed to serve for several types of microwave broadcasting, including FM transmission, Pulse Time Modulation (PTM) broadcasting, both color and black and white television, police radio networks, communication with mobile units such as cars or trucks, radar applications, aerial navigation and monitoring broadcasts by intercepting illegal transmissions.

Federal Telephone and Radio Corporation engineers who designed the tower say that it will be the most efficient and economical means for sending out the many types of broadcasting that are now promised for the future. Built on a cooperative basis, such a tower might send many different types of transmission simultaneously with greater efficiency and saving in cost, they contend.

The tower here has an observation platform 95 feet below its summit with space above the platform for electronic experimentation.

Declaring that microwave towers of the future will be higher and more spacious, E. M. Deloraine, president of International Telecommunication Laboratories says that the new structure will be much more satisfactory than the tall office buildings generally used in experiments with super-high frequency radio wave transmission.

Tomorrow's Scientists Start In Junior High

"How many light years is it to the farthest star?" or "What are the causes of communicable diseases and how can they be controlled?" These and many other questions are delved into by the members of Fred Benette's eighth grade science class of the Escanaba junior high school which meets the fifth period each day.

They speak of light years instead of the number of miles in study of astronomy. It is the idea of the class to try and understand how vast the universe is. If you walked into their class when they study the stars, and what's out in space, you'd find them trying to locate a few constellations and the few planets to be seen at that particular time.

Pupils Make Barometer
When the class takes up the unit of weather they actually make a barometer and watch it themselves. They keep a weather chart from daily weather reports received from the local weather bureau reports.

Such objects as the barometer are made during the special research period held approximately once a week. During this period the students may choose which unit they prefer to study and working in groups of four or five are allowed to do this "free work" on their chosen subject.

Some of the research periods will find groups studying with microscopes, the chemistry of science, girls like to learn more of the home planning unit, and some at present are making a more detailed study of cosmetics.

In the unit, "How our bodies work," health is stressed with a great part of the time devoted to the study of communicable diseases and how they might be controlled.

There is an interesting unit on plants which would take in farming and gardening but seeing most of the students are not planning on large scale farming projects in future life the class is mostly about gardening on small plots. Soil, and fertilizer effects of good soil are studied. Any child interested is allowed to grow from seed such items as tomatoes, cabbage, flowers, etc., in order that they might watch the growth and be able to recognize the plant as it pushes up from the soil to its full growth.

The proper way to heat a home is another subject taken up during this science course. The children learn of the ways in this country to conserve fuel and the proper way to build a home so the occupants will be comfortable in this climate.

Mr. Benette pointed out that this study of science is very elementary but it does give the student the basis on which to go ahead with further study in the upper classes.

The use of energy and how it is put to work for us is touched on lightly by the class. This is interesting to the students in the present atomic powers that may be available.

The students are urged to bring in newspaper clippings and magazine articles and parents are urged to help the students look for these items.

Rocks Are Collected

A collection of rocks has been made for the study of the earth's change. The rocks have been mounted on a board set up with lights. The student pushes a button which illuminates the name of the rock he wishes to identify.

The class also delves into a flotation unit. In this they study reasons why some objects rise while others sink when in water. They find the reason why ships keep afloat on the ocean and how much cargo they can carry without sinking. How an airplane is able to rise in the air and make a flight is another part of that unit.

It is the purpose of the course to make the pupils conscious of their environments and keep awake to the many things science has done for them. A collection of science in stamps is kept which pictures most of the great scientists of the past to whom the world is so greatly indebted.

Beaver Not Eager; "Eager Beaver" Is Eager For Beaver

The eagerness of an "eager beaver" to trap beaver proved expensive for Lawrence Hebeau, 35-year-old woodsman of Escanaba Rt. 1, who paid a fine of $50 and costs here yesterday after he pleaded guilty before Justice of the Peace Henry Ranguette to a charge of trapping beaver out of season.

Hebeau was arrested about six o'clock yesterday morning in Wells township by Conservation

Marquette Mining Journal Changes To Evening Paper

Marquette, Mich.—The Mining Journal company, Ltd., has completed all arrangements preparatory to publication of an afternoon newspaper, daily except Sunday, starting Monday, April 1. It will bring to a close nearly 63 years' continuous publication of a morning paper.

When the last morning edition of the Daily Mining Journal appears on Saturday, March 30, only three morning papers will remain in Michigan. They are: the Detroit Free Press, Grand Rapids Herald and Escanaba Daily Press.

The Daily Mining Journal is the successor in unbroken line to the first newspaper printed in the Upper Peninsula. It was The Lake Superior News and Mining Journal, first published in the spring of 1886 in Copper Harbor by John N. Ingersoll.

Ingersoll moved the plant to Sault Ste. Marie in 1888. In the next seven years ownership of the paper changed hands several times and its name was changed to the Lake Superior Journal. In 1895 it was purchased by John Burt of Marquette, and was moved to that city. A succession of owners and editors published the paper until 1898 when the plant was destroyed by fire.

Following a brief lapse in publication, A. P. Swineford, pioneer journalist, moved a printing plant from Negaunee to Marquette in July, 1898, renewing the life of The Journal. In 1877 Albert Hornstein, father of Walter Hornstein of Garden, became associated with the paper, and in 1881 James Russell, one of the publishers of The Star in Marinette, became managing editor.

Publication of The Daily Mining Journal began on June 2, 1884, when Swineford, Hornstein, and Russell determined that the possibilities of the weekly field had been exhausted.

The Houghton Mining Gazette, which operated as a morning newspaper for many years, shifted to the afternoon field last year.

Employment Service Lists Many Skills

Applicants with various skills are registered with the U. S. Employment Service James M. Dumit, manager of the local Employment Service office said yesterday.

The following classifications will acquaint the public and employers with the type of individuals that are registered with the local office and are available for work. Engineers, teachers, draftsmen, instrument men, radio announcers, store managers, bartenders, cooks, bookkeepers, cashiers, stenographers, general office clerks, stock clerks, machinists, machine operators, welders, electricians, carpenters, painters, switchmen, millwrights and many other semi-skilled and laboring classifications too numerous to mention.

The majority of the applicants registered with the local office are veterans interested in working in this area. However, some of the veterans registered are interested in temporary work while they are waiting to enter schools or apprenticeship training programs.

Employers are urged to make their manpower needs known to the local office so that interested veterans can get job information from a central point in this area. This method would enable the Employment Service to give better and more useful service to job seekers and employers.

Officer Lewis C. Brown, Beaver trapping in the Upper Peninsula will be legal for ten days beginning next Monday, April 1.

Behind Russia's Curtain

Rulers in Balkan Countries Picked by Stalin

EDITOR'S NOTE—In the following special dispatch, a veteran foreign correspondent and authority on Russian affairs gives further views of Russia's puppet leaders behind the "Iron Curtain," supplementing the dispatches by Joachim Joesten.

By EUGENE LYONS
NEA Special Correspondent

New York (NEA)—The tough men whom Moscow has put at the head of subservient regimes in Russian-dominated countries of Eastern Europe are sometimes described as "Stalin's viceroys." A more accurate description, conveying a clearer picture to American minds, would be "Stalin quislings."

The fact is that the top rulers in Poland, Yugoslavia, Albania, Bulgaria and Romania have been hand-picked by the Russians, imposed on the people, by ruthless force and maintained in power by all-out terror.

Trained in Moscow
Some of them, like Boleslaw Beirut in Poland and "Marshall" Josip Broz Tito in Yugoslavia, are seasoned communists trained in Moscow.

Others are political adventurers from non-communist and even anti-communist parties willing to serve as Soviet tools.

Among them are men with long fascist records, like Bulgaria's Kimon Georgiev, one of the assassins of the democratic peasant leader Stambolinski.

All of them obey the dictates from Moscow headquarters so abjectly that the pretense of local autonomy is a grim joke. Not one of them would survive in power overnight if civil rights were restored and the police terror removed.

Without exception they have arrested and, in many cases, executed democratic opponents, including socialist and peasant leaders who cooperated closely with the Allies against the Axis.

The "elections" staged in Tito's and Georgiev's countries to placate Anglo-American opinion were of the familiar one-party variety, in which a single list of official candidates is submitted on a take-it-or-leave-it basis.

A number of opposition people have been added to the Polish and Romanian cabinets, as the price of Anglo-American recognition. Similar additions will be made in Bulgaria.

In every case, however, these men are a helpless minority serving as political camouflage for the dictatorial regime.

Maj. Temple H. Fielding of the U. S. Army, after serving at Marshall Tito's headquarters for some months, wrote in an American magazine:

"Commissars and secret police are everywhere. People seen in the wrong company are promptly arrested; criticism of Tito or of the USSR is punishable by death."

That is a fair measure of the self-government supposedly enjoyed by Soviet satellite states under Stalin's viceroys. Comparison of these captive nations, as well as constituent "republics" within the Soviet Union, with dominions like Canada in the British Commonwealth is far-fetched. The Ukraine, White Russia and other alleged autonomous states are simply administrative units. They can make no important local decision, let alone decisions in foreign policy, that is not 100 per cent in line with Kremlin orders.

Additional UNO Votes
The purpose of playing them up as somehow equivalent to British dominions has been to obtain additional votes for Russia in the United Nations Organization. Indeed a bogus constitutional change was announced to justify the award of UNO seats to the Ukraine and White Russia. This did not alter the reality that they are parts of a highly centralized totalitarian setup.

While Soviet political control of the satellite nations is absolute, Russia has moved slowly in the matter of their economic bolshevization. But already the economic changes imposed on the helpless areas indicate the ultimate purpose of bringing them as close as possible to the Soviet social pattern.

The statement that Stalin is building "a multinational association of more or less independent states, reminiscent of the British Commonwealth" seems to this writer a grotesque version of the facts.

Americans would be better advised to call a spade a spade and a ruthless dictatorship a ruthless dictatorship.

C-C CAMPAIGN IS UNDER WAY

Solicitors Begin Task Of Contacting 200 Prospects

The campaign for new members to the Escanaba Chamber of Commerce got off to a good start yesterday as first returns from the solicitors were received.

Approximately 35 solicitors attended the kick off breakfast yesterday morning at the Sherman Hotel, at which short speeches were given by Harold Lindsay, H. D. Brackett, Gust Asp and Roy Overpack. John Bartella presided at the breakfast meeting. In addition a dozen solicitors unable to attend the breakfast joined in the campaign later in the day.

Approximately 200 prospects will be contacted in the next few days. The final reports must be submitted to the C-C office by Monday, April 1.

RUSSELL LONG IN POLITICS?

Son Of The Late Senator Has Capitol Tongues Wagging

Baton Rouge, La.—Russell Long, son of the late Sen. Huey Long, has returned from the wars—and capital tongues already are wagging in speculation as to whether he will attempt to follow the fiery political footsteps of his famous father.

But Russell, who resembles his dad amazingly in physical appearance, apparently also acquired some of the senator's "keep 'em guessing" philosophy. Without being either coy or evasive, he won't say.

"Some day, maybe," he admits. "I have absolutely no plans now along political lines. Of course, it will be awfully hard to stay out."

There you are. No "yes." But no "no," either, and an admission of interest in the field his father made colorful and of which Russell had a successful taste in college.

Dad Started Younger
When and if he does run for office, though, Russell can't now tie his dad's record for youthful attempts. The late senator ran for state railroad commissioner at the minimum age of 23.

Russell is 27, and right now seems interested in only two things: his family—wife Katherine and two-year-old Rita Katherine—and in establishing a law office with a classmate, Gordon West, with whom he won moot court competition at Louisiana State University.

Law practice in Baton Rouge? Wasn't that the "heart" of anti-Long political opposition? Russell just chuckles, says something about "sound military strategy."

In Four Invasions
He was graduated at LSU in 1942, and went into the Navy immediately as an apprentice seaman under the V-7 program. He came out a lieutenant, after some pretty rough going as officer in charge of an LCT in four Mediteranean invasions.

Before he left LSU, though, he gave a sample of what he can do politically when stirred up. Running for student president, he capped all previous—and probably all subsequent—campaign stunts, by having Ted Lewis endorse his and lead his band at a rally.

Of his war experience, little can be learned from young Long, himself.

"Aw," technically," he says, "we were in the North African invasion, but saw little battle. Did have a little action, invading Sicily and Anzio and southern France."

That "little action," he had revealed in a letter to his family, included being just behind another invasion craft blown to bits by a mine, and other "incidents."

A Persuasive Talker

Get Russell started talking about his dad, though, and his dark blue eyes light up and he muses his curly brown hair.

He is a convincing talker. No oratory, just evidence of both much curiosity about his listeners' views and great sincerity about his own. His English is excellent—but mixed occasionally with such homey or colloquial expressions as "they might can."

Brought back to the possibility of a political career of his own, Russell made it plain that he would rather not "rehash Dad's old fights."

"All that is for historians to judge," he declared.

"But if it's brought up—if a fellow is hit, he's gotta punch back!"

A little more than 100 years ago there were only four grown horses in Australia.

Women's Club
Enjoys Program
By Miss Taylor

Members of the Escanaba Women's Club enjoyed one of their most successful meetings of the year yesterday, when Miss Jessie Rae Taylor appeared in a program, "Personality Portraits."

Impersonating characters from literature, stage and screen, Miss Taylor presented in quick succession a large variety of living portraits, each with complete costume, make-up and lighting.

Among her characterizations were Louis Pasteur; Mr. Chips as a professor at Brookfield, giving his retirement address to the student body, from the well-known book "Good-bye, Mr. Chips," by James Hilton; Mrs. Jode, the mother, in John Steinbeck's "Grapes of Wrath," Father at the breakfast table, from Clarence Day's "Life With Father";

Mrs. Midget, from the play, "Outward Bound," which was later revived as "Between Two Worlds"; "Tony from Italy," one of the many characters made famous by T. A. Daley; the mother, Mrs. Martin, as she talks to her son, from the play, "Dead End"; and a character, "Tom Chivers," originated by Miss Taylor to show the art of pantomime.

A short business meeting, conducted by Mrs. John Mitchell, president of the Women's Club, preceded the program, which was held at the Sherman hotel. Mrs. John Wolkensauer was program chairman, and the committee for the day was headed by Mrs. A. M. Gilbert, assisted by Mrs. John M. Trotter and Mrs. Carl G. Nelson.

Peter Wojakowski of Wilson announce the engagement of their daughter, Kathryn, to Charles Eret of Chicago. Miss Wojakowski is employed in Chicago. Mr. Eret has received his discharge from the army after three years with an Engineer division, serving in England, France, Belgium and Germany. The wedding will take place in May.

Careful Make-up
Aids Pale Brows

To darken pale eyebrows so that even a ferret-eyed observer won't suspect your trick, use both a black and a brown pencil. Have sharp points on both.

Spilling her secret and telling you how to put your ruse across, Nello Fisher, Broadway's singer-dancer-actress, says apply brown pencil first, using hair-like strokes. Then fleck with the black pencil, which, says Nello, kills the monotony of one solid color.

The idea, according to this clever miss, is to give the natural-looking effect of a varied pigment. "An all-brown tracing is apt to make eyebrows look painted-on," says Nello, who also has a warning against marking too boldly with black. That is: it can make the gentlest face look as fierce as Mephisto's!

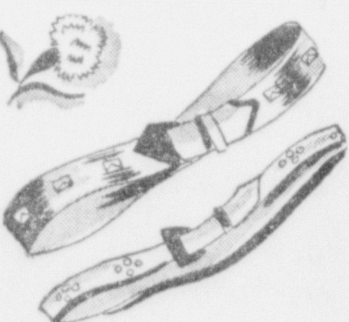

Penicillin Controls
Streptococcus Sore
Throat In Epidemic

Chicago — Penicillin can help check epidemics of streptococcus sore throat and possibly other streptococcus-caused diseases, which include scarlet fever, it appears from a report by Dr. Morton Hamburger, Jr., of this city, and Capt. Henry M. Lemon, of the Army Medical Corps, in the forthcoming issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association.

The mold chemical can do this because it can in many cases promptly eliminate all the streptococci from the noses and throats of healthy carriers of these germs. Spread of the germs from patients can be pretty well checked by isolation of the patients. Healthy persons who have the germs in their noses and throats are usually not known to be carrying the germs until they have spread them to many others.

Sulfadiazine can check the spread of streptococci from carriers if the streptococci are susceptible to the sulfa drug. Some strains of these germs, however, become resistant to sulfa drugs.

Penicillin in beeswax peanut oil, injected once a day for five to seven days, promptly eliminated the streptococci from both nose and throat of half the carriers in the group Dr. Hamburger and Capt. Lemon studied. In the other half, the streptococci were eliminated or reduced by more than 95 percent in number during the period the carriers were getting the penicillin, though after it was stopped, there was a relapse into the carrier state. Most of the carriers in whom relapse occurred, however, scattered very few streptococci into their environment.

"A method is now available," the two doctors conclude, "for controlling well over half the dangerous carriers in event of an epidemic."

Larger doses of penicillin, they suggest, may eradicate the carrier state from even more persons.

Unusual Lighting Tricks Will Make Rooms More Interesting

Unusual lighting effects, designed for beauty as well as for utility, may be used to enhance the soft fold of a living room drape or highlight an object of art on the mantel, to cast a shaft of light on sparkling glass and tableware, and even to create the illusion of warm sunlight on a winter day.

New ideas available immediately for household use include such fascinations as the following:

Glass blocks used in a dining room side wall to form an artificial window. The blocks are lighted to simulate sunlight. Amber fluorescent lamps are used in mat finished reflectors, concealed in a metal or asbestos cabinet.

A built-in glass shelf cabinet, with mirror backwall, for the dining room. The cabinet is lighted from both top and bottom by white fluorescent lamps.

A semi-recessed unit with a 60-watt incandescent lamp which produces a warm glow of light in the entrance hall. Its pressed glass bowl, supported in a plain hinged rim, has a concentric prism bottom. Inner prism surfaces may be finished in color to match decorations, without distorting the color of the light.

Amber lamps over windows in the living room, and white lamps over a rear wall create an illusion of sunlight in winter. A change of lamps in summer permits cool effect from daylight type lamps.

A continuous fluorescent tube may be concealed in the mantel over a fireplace. A panel of clear plastic containing closely spaced louvers shields the lamp from persons standing in the room. Ornaments placed on the mantel are softly lighted, and a cheerful indirect lighting effect on the ceiling over the mantel results.

Windows may be lighted with fluorescent lamps concealed in a valance lighting unit. Light is spilled on the drapes below the valance, as well as on the wall and ceiling above.

A center dome in the dining room may provide indirect lighting from two curved fluorescent tubes, one soft white and the other 3500 degrees white. It conceals a pin-hole spotlight, used to highlight the table.

Decorative luminous plaques made of glass or plastic, with polished clear edges and etched decoration, may be used in the dining room and softly illuminated by a small fluorescent lamp located below each ornament.

returned from Algoma, Wis., where they attended the funeral of Mrs. Wawirka's mother.

Mrs. Cecil Collins, 112 South 14th street, is leaving tomorrow for Milwaukee where she will spend several days visiting with her daughter, Donna, who is employed there.

H. J. RUSHTON IS UNDECIDED

Escanaba Man Uncertain On Move To "Draft" Him For Governor

Herbert J. Rushton of 1406 Tenth avenue south, former attorney general of Michigan, yesterday said "I didn't know I was young enough to be drafted," when asked to comment on news reports from Lower Michigan that an attempt is being made to "draft" him for the Republican gubernatorial contest.

"I don't know a thing about the proposal, and I'm not in a position to make a statement," Rushton said. "The only thing I might say is that I have made no decision."

Rushton has been a practicing attorney in Escanaba for nearly forty years, with intervals of public service that took him to Lansing, first as state senator from 1926 to 1932, and more recently as attorney general. He has also served Delta county as prosecuting attorney, and as attorney for the city of Escanaba for 21 years. His legal practice for the past decade has been devoted largely to corporations.

In May, 1940, he was appointed director of the state board of tax administration and served in that capacity until he took over the office of attorney general Jan. 1, 1941. He retired from the office in 1944 without seeking reelection.

Scientist Meeting Told To Work For Peace, Orderliness

St. Louis—Despite the destructiveness of the recent war and the uncertainty of the present, with the menace of the atom-bomb beclouding the horizon, this is no time for pessimism and despair, Prof. S. Howard Patterson, University of Pennsylvania economist, told members of the American Association for the Advancement of Science here today, in his address as retiring chairman of the section on social sciences. Instead of wallowing over the world's woes, we should work all the harder to insure peace and set things in order again.

Things aren't at all bad, if you take the long historic view, the speaker contended.

"This is the century of the common man, which fact can be illustrated economically in higher planes of living, as well as politically in the widening suffrage. The American laborer today enjoys comforts of life unknown to princes of antiquity."

"Because of mechanical inventions and improved means of production, the worker now enjoys greatly increased leisure for the more abundant life. Indeed, he appears to be menaced more by the new problem of unemployment or underwork than by the old problem of exploitation or overwork. Unemployment is essentially enforced and excessive leisure, whereas exploitation is enforced and excessive work. Both are maladjustments, which are social examples of culture lag and economic illustrations of lack of balance."

Abundance, security and all the other blessings of peace are, of course, not to be had merely for the wishing. It takes something more solid than that, Prof. Patterson reminded his audience.

"Peace on earth was promised only to men of good will," he said. "The angel song was heard by simple shepherds without power or wealth, but they seem to have had common sense, cooperation and initiative."

"So today, it would still seem that good will and common sense are alike necessary to preserve the peace and to perfect an international union without loss of local self-government and individual liberty. Difficulties in the way are innumerable, but they are not insurmountable. Defeatism and dissension among the wise are as fatal as ignorance and indifference among the foolish."

Dog In Court Speaks Out, Is Fined $2.00

New York—(AP)—Bon Bon, a prize winning white toy poodle, put up a strong case for himself when brought into Summons Court on a charge of not being leashed. He followed so closely every step of his mistress, Mrs. Leicester Harrison, and obeyed so well every order of "Come here" and "About face" that the courtroom crowd laughed.

That prompted Bon Bon to bark.

"Quiet, please," admonished the magistrate. "Two dollars fine." Mrs. Harrison, whose husband is a Navy engineer now in North Africa, protested that, when pinched, Bon Bon was carrying his end of the leash in his mouth as he usually does, while she held the other end. Besides, she said, he was the best of 11 dogs she keeps in her apartment.

But she paid Bon Bon's fine.

U. S. Army engineers devised a wide track for tractors, for use in rice paddies of Japan, that practically eliminated the danger of getting stuck or turned over. Track was made of planks four inches thick, six inches wide and five feet long.

YOUTH FACES
FELONY COUNT

Will Be Tried For Armed Robbery In April
Circuit Court

An ingeniously fashioned pistol, made from a 22 rifle, is purported to have been the weapon used Wednesday night in an attempted robbery attack upon Mrs. Stella Paul and Mrs. Kathryn Beal, both of Gulliver, by a youth whom they picked up along the highway on their way home.

Benjamin Joslin, 16, is held by the authorities, charged with the crime and the home made pistol was found under some boards at the youth's home.

The pistol is made from the firing part of the rifle, the barrel being cut to about three inches in length and home made butt being fitted into the breech. As the spring had to be taken from the back to make the handle fit, rubber bands were used to trip the hammer. A shell was in it when it was found. Also found by the police was a home made billy club made of leather and stuffed with scrap iron.

Mrs. Beal, who was driving the car, was able to return to her home Thursday morning after receiving treatment at the Shaw hospital for injuries when she was struck on the head, presumably by the pistol. She suffered severe bruises and lacerations.

Mrs. Paul also suffered minor injuries while running to safety when she slipped on a gravelly pathway and bruised her knees.

The attempted robbery proved a fizzle as Mrs. Beal dropped her pocketbook and shoved it under the seat of her car with her feet. The robber, when he grabbed Mrs. Paul's purse accidentally opened it up and its contents were strewn about the ground. In disgust, he threw the empty purse away.

Benjamin and his brother, Homer, 18, were taken into custody shortly after the crime was committed. Homer, who left the car before the robbery, has not been charged with participation in it, but is held in custody as a material witness.

USES Office To Close Saturdays

The United States Employment Service office, located at 125 South Cedar street, will not be open on Saturdays, M. G. Heinz, local manager announces. A recent order from government headquarters placed the office on a 40-hour per week basis.

The new office hours will be 8:30 a. m. to 5:15 Mondays through Fridays.

John Hruska Thursday afternoon, charged with armed robbery. Judge Hruska waived jurisdiction and the youth was brought before Justice of the Peace W. G. Stephens, where waiving examination he was bound over to the coming term of circuit court.

He is now being held in the custody of the court.

MORE CASES IN CIRCUIT COURT

Calendar Indicates Coming Session Will Be Busy

A slight increase in the number of cases listed on the docket for hearing and trial at the April term of circuit court, is announced by G. Leslie Bouschor, county clerk.

Court convenes Monday, April 8, with Judge Herbert W. Runnels presiding.

Listed among the criminal cases are: State vs. Edgar Robare in which the defendant is asking for a new trial. He was convicted of the murder of Buford Norberg twenty two years ago. Kurt J. Kremlick is listed as his attorney.

Floyd W. Miller and Richard Lehman are both defendants on charges of desertion.

Charles and Ralph Davison, recently convicted on charges of breaking into and entering the Hub Tavern and now serving time at Marquette, are on the criminal docket charged with theft of a car and larceny from another. Ralph is also charged with stealing a gun from a car.

Though not listed on the calendar, the case of State vs. Benjamin Joslin, a minor, on a charge of armed robbery.

Civil cases include: Sherman F. Dewey vs. Herman Swanson and John Swanson doing business as Swanson Trucking Company. A matter of contract is involved.

June Hensley vs. Charles Adams and Bernal Hensley vs. Charles Adams. This is a suit for damages following an automobile accident.

The National Net and Twine Company vs. John Anthony, has to do with default in payment.

Two divorce cases and several tax sale decrees are also up for hearing.

County Agent Urges Buying Of Seed Potato Stock

Growers who have not already secured certified seed for this year's potato crop should act at once, County Agent Joseph Heiman urges. Those in need of such certified seed may apply to him should they need help in getting a supply.

The only variety left for this area at present is Russett Ruralis. Several farmers in the immediate vicinity, he says, have purchased a supply to plant for their next season's needs, thus enabling them to renew their stock.

Orders should be placed within the next week or ten days he says.

Strawberries And Rhubarb Grown In Mid-Winter

Two local gardeners, it seems, are rushing the season. John I. Bellaire is having rhubarb sauce at his house every so often made from stalks freshly picked and over at the Frank Arrowwood home they had strawberries and cream, freshly picked.

Mr. Arrowwood potted a strawberry plant last fall and rewarded his kindly treatment with blossoms galore. All of the flowers bore fruit. A sample shown at the Press office was large and fragrant.

Mr. Bellaire's rhubarb was the result of an experiment which he plans to carry on extensively next winter. He dug up several rhubarb roots last fall, allowed them to freeze, put them in sand and then took them to the cellar. Watering them often the stalks sprouted and the quality of the product is as good as any raised in a garden.

SHORT FIGHT

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 1 1/2 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, loss of pep and energy, itching at night, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with a burning and stinging sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. Doan's gives happy relief and helps keep the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

BASEBALL LOOP TO REORGANIZE

Escanaba May Seek Franchise In N.W.M. Circuit

Iron Mountain—The Northern Wisconsin Michigan Baseball League, inactive since the first war year, will be reorganized at a meeting to be held here at 2 p. m. Sunday, it was announced yesterday by Buck Erickson, acting president of the circuit when it suspended operations.

The meeting will be held in the Iron Mountain city council rooms.

SEEK FRANCHISE

Local baseball leaders who are interested in seeking a franchise for Escanaba in the N.W.M. league are asked to contact Ralph Dube at the Sherman Hotel, or call the Daily Press sports department. Arrangements are being made now to have an Escanaba delegation at the N.W.M. organization meeting Sunday at Iron Mountain.

Prospects are for a six or eight-team league this year. The Iron Mountain Rangers, Niagara Badgers, Crystal Falls, Iron River and the Iron Mountain—Kingsford Rod Twins are present franchise holders. Of these, all teams are expected back except the Ford Twins who have not reorganized.

New teams seeking berths include the Iron Kings, local team sponsored by the American Legion which has applied for the Twins' franchise; Channing, Negaunee, Escanaba and L'Anse. It is reported that Norway-Vulcan can be represented at the meeting.

Negaunee's application was filed by Clyde Eddy, Escanaba's by Ralph Dube and L'Anse's by Dean Piatt.

Principal business for Sunday's session will be a decision on the teams to be admitted for 1946 and election of league officers. Organization will be completed at a second meeting when a schedule will be drafted.

Erickson said that all teams seeking berths in the league should be represented Sunday by men fully authorized to speak for their clubs.

THE OLD FOLK SAYS...

GEORGE: "Yes, I certainly would like to hear why you call that an old fashioned idea, Judge."

OLD JUDGE: "Glad to tell you, George. Until recently, a person known as an alcoholic was generally treated as a social outcast. Little if anything was done to understand him or help him. But, during the past few years, medical research and study has developed that alcoholics are really sick people...that there is usually a deep-rooted physical, social or emotional reason behind their behavior. That's why today so much is being done to help them by finding out and correcting the condition that leads them to excess."

GEORGE: "How many folks are there like that, Judge?"

OLD JUDGE: "Well, according to scientific research, 95% of the people who drink, drink sensibly. 5% do so unwisely, at times. Included in that 5% is the small percentage of the sick people I'm talking about."

GEORGE: "That certainly gives me a clearer picture. It's the most sensible approach I've ever heard on the subject."

TIGERS TACKLE INDIANS TODAY

Last Florida Date With Reds Rained Out; First String Gets Action

Tampa, Fla., March 28 (AP)—Rained out of their last Florida date with the Cincinnati Reds here today, the World Champion Detroit Tigers return to their "home" base at Lakeland tomorrow to test their "regular" line-up for the first time this spring against the Cleveland Indians.

Not since the Bengals' spring camp opened Feb. 20 has Manager Steve O'Neill had an opportunity to make use of the combination he expects to have in the field when Detroit's American League season opens April 16. Holdout troubles and a flock of injuries have prevented the Tigers from operating at top strength in the Grapefruit League.

With nearly all the cripples back in shape, the Tigers will mix it with the Indians tomorrow with an outfield consisting of Dick Wakefield, Barney Mc Coy and Pat Mullin and an infield made up of Hank Greenberg at first base, Eddie Mayo at second, Eddie Lake at short and Jim Outlaw at third.

Mc Coy hasn't seen action since he pulled a hip muscle his first week in camp. Mayo has been sidelined with an ailing back and Greenberg was given a three-day rest to sharpen up his batting eye.

Today's encounter with the Reds was washed out by a sudden rainstorm which forced a halt to the game after Lake and Doc Cramer, first Tigers up in the opening inning, had singled successively to left field off Joe Beggs.

The Tigers will meet Cincinnati four more times before home, tangling with the National League at Terre Haute and Richmond, Ind., and Dayton and Columbus, Ohio.

START TONIGHT MONDAY

Lakeland, Fla., March 28 (AP)—Manager Steve O'Neill of the Detroit Tigers said today a squad of 30 players, including a dozen pitchers, would start the Bengals' northward exhibition trek Monday when the club breaks its Lakeland training camp.

Pitcher Rufus Gentry and infielder Johnny Lipon will remain behind to work out for an additional week with the Buffalo Bisons, Detroit's International League farm club, at Winter Haven. Both have sore arms.

Detroit's traveling squad, as listed by O'Neill:

Pitchers—Al Benton, George Caster, Freddie Hutchinson, Lou Kretlow, Hal Manders, Les Mueller, Hal Newhouse, Stubby Overmire, Paul Trout, Virgil Trucks, Hal White and Tommy Bridges.

Catchers—Birdie Tebbetts, Paul Richards, Bob Swift, Joe Erazut.

Infielders—Hank Greenberg, Pinky Higgins, Bill Hitchcock, Eddie Lake, Eddie Mayo, Skeeter Webb and Jim Outlaw.

Outfielders—Doc Cramer, Roy Cullenbine, Barney Mc Coy, Ed Mierkowitz, Pat Mullin, Dick Wakefield and Ned Harris.

The Sports Parade

By Ken Gunderman

Eight of the ten members of the Eskymo basketball squad that won the upper peninsula Class B championship at Ironwood last Saturday night are seniors, including all of the starting five. The seniors are Jack Finn, Don Ohman, Jim Ross, Bob Dufour and Don Scott, which comprises the starting lineup, plus Jack Schils, LeRoy Finn and Roger Peterson. Only holdovers are Dick Lough, a sophomore, and John Besson, a junior. Nevertheless, it's still too early to begin shedding tears over the prospects for next season. At that the basketball prospects for 1946-47 are somewhat brighter than the football prospects for 1946, since 20 per cent of the basketball lettermen will return.

Work has started on the development of a baseball schedule for Escanaba high school's first season—sponsored interscholastic baseball team. Coach Jim Rou-

SOUTHERN TOUR SWEEP BY MSC

Raleigh, N. C., March 28 (AP)—Joe Skrocki, a returned navy chief from Saginaw, gave Michigan State a clean sweep of its nine-game southern tour pitching the Spartans to a 3 to 1 victory over North Carolina State here today.

The victory was Skrocki's third of the season and enabled the Spartans to emerge undefeated for the third time below the Mason-Dixon line in the tour's 18-year old history. In 1938, they won seven straight games while in 1936 four games were won with three rainouts out.

The Spartans gathered but three hits off two Wolf Pack hurlers, but each figured in scoring. Centerfielder Bob Ludwig's double in the first inning sparked a two-run rally while singles by Rightfielder Floyd Guest and Catcher Ben Hudenko paced another run in the fourth.

Although nicked for seven hits, Skrocki held the Wolf Pack in check, striking out six and walking one. A pair of singles in the third frame spoiled a shutout performance.

Only The "Haves" Scorn Standing In Nylon Lines

BY RUTH MILLET

NEA Staff Writer

After just two months of civilian life, a WAC sergeant recently re-enlisted, giving as her reason: "Everybody at home has gone crazy over luxuries. People stand in line for hours and battle each other for a pound of butter or a pair of nylons. Personally, I wouldn't stand in line five minutes for anything."

Well, that's all right for a girl who is foot-loose and fancy-free, and who can chuck civilian life whenever she wishes. But Mrs. America has no such luxury.

It's all very well for folks to say, "I wouldn't stand in line for anything." But have you ever noticed that those who talk that way usually have the necessities others are in line to get?

When a woman says, "I would not stand in line for stockings," she is always wearing a pair—and usually nylons. Either she has been allotted her stockings in lady-like fashion by the store or stores at which she has a charge account, or she knows somebody who can get them for her.

BUTTER, TOO

The same thing is true of other shortages. The folks whose butchers will save them butter and other scarce items can afford to say, "I wouldn't stand in line for anything." So can those who are free to go back into the Army if civilian life doesn't suit them.

But the working girls who don't have impressive charge accounts and the housewives who aren't regular customers anywhere because they have always shopped around for penny-saving bargains are forced to stand in lines to get the things they want.

Before you let yourself be impressed by any "I-wouldn't-stand-in-line" talk, make sure that the speaker isn't wearing a pair of run-free stockings. Or ask her how much butter she has in the ice-box at home.

man probably will call out the baseball squad next Monday. Baseball prospects are encouraging as most of the lads who played on the Escanaba Teensters ball club last summer are high school youngsters. Interscholastic baseball games probably will be played on mid-week days, with Saturdays reserved for the track meets. It is anticipated that the baseball will play a schedule of about 10 games before the close of the school year in June.

Tickets for the Manistique boxing matches April 8 are moving briskly at Manistique. A block of 175 reserved seats in one section has been allocated for Escanaba fight fans and these tickets are now available at Gust Aspi's here.

At least seven Escanaba fighters will appear on the Manistique matches and some top rate pairings will be announced in several days. In the meantime the boys are working out regularly and are getting back in tip top shape after the lull during the Golden Gloves tournament.

Assurance has been given that the steel fence ordered by the Escanaba Softball association for its new field adjacent to the fairgrounds will arrive on schedule early in May. The softball association emptied its bank roll to make the purchase which entailed an expenditure of about $2100, and the City of Escanaba has agreed to provide the necessary labor for the installation. When the enclosure is attained, the Escanaba Softball team will constitute the best softball outfit in the peninsula. Arrangements are being made now to provide additional bleacher capacity.

A local group of baseball enthusiasts, headed by Ralph Dube, is planning to investigate the possibility of placing an Escanaba team in the Northern Wisconsin Michigan baseball circuit, which will be revived this summer. A reorganization meeting will be held Sunday at Iron Mountain and it is probable that there will be an Escanaba delegation on hand to make request for a franchise. Dube reports that there is a wealth of baseball talent home from the war and that Escanaba is capable of fielding a strong entry in the N. W. M. circuit.

The committee declared that "a great part of the field of atomic energy can be opened up relative to competitive activity." But it underlined its statement that "the safe operations are possible only because dangerous ones are being carried out concurrently" by the international authority.

The international control plan would provide for the demarcation of "dangerous" and "safe" activities to be revised officially by the ADA or some superior authority, in the light of developments and advances in knowledge.

Evers Thinks He'll Play By June First

Detroit, March 28 (AP)—Walter (Hoot) Evers, Detroit Tigers' rookie outfielder under treatment in a Detroit hospital for a broken thumb and fractured ankle suffered in a Florida exhibition game 10 days ago, said today he would be ready to play again by June 1.

"Of course that's just my guess," Evers explained. "I might make it before then."

Evers, who expects to be discharged from the hospital this weekend, was the sensation of the Tiger training camp, hitting at a .406 clip and fielding spectacularly until forced out of the lineup by the doubleheader casualty.

Washington— "All cannons have hairy ears."

This line from the popular song of the first World War is misleading in implying that the hair is a protection against the blast of big guns, according to Maj. H. S. Howard of the Field Artillery, U. S. Army.

Maj. Howard, who is himself a patient at Borden General Hospital because of a permanent hearing loss resulting from exposure to the blast of artillery pieces, urges a program of research in collaboration with the hearing experts of the Medical Corps to prevent such injury to ears.

It is not even known conclusively what areas around the guns are danger zones for hearing, especially for the big guns, Maj. Howard explains in the new issue of the Field Artillery Journal. From what is now known, however, the breach area, where the gunner and cannoners perform their duties, is included in a so-called "excluded area" where a person can not work efficiently during long continued fire.

A cannoner may also be in the even more hazardous "danger area" of a nearby artillery piece, and wire crews often lay their wire through this danger area to a forward observation post.

Australia possesses an extraordinary variety of birds, including vast flocks of brilliantly colored parrots and cockatoos.

Ice cream is known to have been served in America as early as 1808 in New Orleans.

legal activity.

The ADA would closely supervise the planning, construction and operation of these plants.

The whole control system would be bolstered by an international force of inspectors. The inspectors would be more than policemen, however. They would be eminent scientists who also would give advice on research and operation.

The international ADA, as contemplated, would be an organization of a type which would attract the greatest scientists of every country to its rolls. It would be the world's supreme authority on atomic energy, with the body of its knowledge far surpassing that held by the scientists of any individual country.

The ADA also would conduct nuclear research, including experiments in the field of atomic explosives. In the explosive field it alone would be permitted to conduct research, but individuals, institutions and governments throughout the world would be free to pursue studies and experiments in other atomic fields.

The report differentiates between "dangerous" and "safe" activities. All the "dangerous" activities would be carried on by the ADA and prohibited to individual nations. The various countries would be free to engage in the "safe" activities.

If any nation should embark upon a "dangerous" activity, the committee declared, the fact would be clearly apparent and would constitute a "red light." International steps could be taken to suppress it regardless of any specific professions by the offending country.

The committee declared that "a great part of the field of atomic energy can be opened up relative to competitive activity." But it underlined its statement that "the safe operations are possible only because dangerous ones are being carried out concurrently" by the international authority.

The international control plan would provide for the demarcation of "dangerous" and "safe" activities to be revised officially by the ADA or some superior authority, in the light of developments and advances in knowledge.

For the present time, the committee listed three activities which it would classify as "safe" and four as "dangerous."

Safe:

1. "The application of radioactive material as tracers in scientific, medical and technological studies."
2. The use of "small nuclear reactors which use denatured U-235 or plutonium." These can be used to make radioactive materials or to provide radiation as a research tool or to bring about chemical or biological changes.
3. "The development of power from the fission of denatured U-235 and plutonium in high power-level reactors" of 100,000 to 1,000,000 kilowatts.

Dangerous:

1. "Prospecting, mining, and refining of uranium, and, to a lesser extent, thorium."
2. "The enrichment of the isotope 235 by any methods now known to us."
3. "The operation of the various types of reactors for making plutonium, and of separation plants for extracting the plutonium."
4. "Research and development in atomic explosives."

Reactors of both the "safe" and "dangerous" types will produce power. The committee estimated that "for every kilowatt generated in safe reactors, about one kilowatt must be generated in dangerous ones in which the material was manufactured."

Thus if atomic power is in fact developed on a large scale, it is continued, "about half of it will inevitably be an international monopoly and about a half might be available for competitive exploitation. That is to say, the primary production plants necessary to produce the materials required to construct safe power plants will in that process of production produce large amounts of power as a by-product."

The committee recognized that the location of the international plants therefore posed a problem but held that it could be solved by international deliberations.

Airborne Television Used By Army, Navy

Washington—Now it's "walkie-lookie." Airborne television, that gave the Army and Navy "eyes" in remote control aircraft and other important weapons for victory, was demonstrated to the public for the first time here today with a promise of many revolutionary developments from the use of television in peacetime air warfare.

Two systems of aerial television, known during the war as "block" and "ring," were shown to the press at the Naval Air Station at Anacostia, D. C., this afternoon by Navy and Radio Corporation of America engineers who worked on the projects.

"Ring" equipment transmits clear television pictures from up to 200 miles, while a more compact unit, the "block" system, is a smaller installation for use over shorter distances.

"Walkie-lookie," the picture equivalent of the small voice instrument known as "walkie-talkie," will come from the "block" system's light-weight, easily portable television camera, according to Brig. David Saroff, president of RCA. He predicted literal eyewitness news coverage for events in the future with the small camera.

Luckless Rookies Get Axe As Clubs Leave Southland

BY JACK HAND

Daytona Beach, Fla., March 28 (AP)—Baseball's busiest and longest spring training season is nearing its end and most of the big league clubs will have deserted their Florida bases for the long journey home before the next week is out.

The axe will fall on many a rookie's neck in a few days as managers cut their squads to ship talent to the farm clubs. The waiver lists are bulging with talent, many of whom are veteran players, and the downward traffic will be heavy for at least a month.

President John Quinn, of the Boston Braves, says Manager Billy Southworth plans to cut his squad when the team stops at Lakeland for a weekend series with Detroit. Others are making similar plans although at least two clubs, the New York Yankees and Brooklyn Dodgers, are sending home two separate units on exhibition tours.

Even while they are paring surplus talent, the majors still are hoping to make deals to cover up vital deficiencies. Detroit, for example, is eager to land a second baseman; Connie Mack is looking for a right fielder; Washington needs a third sacker; the Yankees need pitching talent and so do the Dodgers and the New York Giants. Any time Owner Sam Breadon of the St. Louis Cardinals decides to lop a few names off his payroll, every club in both leagues will be knocking at his door.

Southworth's Braves actually beat the gun on the other Florida-based teams, leaving for Fort Lauderdale today to stop at Fort Myers enroute to Tampa and Lakeland where they will pick up the Tigers to swing northward together.

LEADERS LIMP; BIDDING TIMID

BY VICTOR EUBANK

New York, March 28 (AP)—Assorted stocks exhibited great strength in today's market while many leaders continued to limp.

Timid bidding was attributed partly to individual quotations such as dividends, earnings and possible splits. Numerous customers still were apprehensive over the so-called colored strike, the UNO council rift on Iran and suggestions that the recent technical comeback from the February drop may have been overdone.

The pace slowed appreciably after a fairly fast opening and trends were irregularly lower at the close.

The Associated Press 60-stock average was off 1/4 of a point at 77 1/2.

Utilities did well, as forecasts were heard of first quarter income topping the 1945 period by 50 per cent. A few rubbers, oils, amusements and merchandisers were front. Most steels, motors, rails and aircrafts slipped.

Gainers included Electric Power & Light, Consolidated Edison, Public Service of N. J., Goodrich, U. S. Rubber, Sears Roebuck and Montgomery Ward. Los Angeles Edison, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, Allied Chemical, Tractor, American Airlines, Boeing, Curtiss-Wright "A", Du Pont, General Electric, Schenley, Westinghouse and Union Carbide.

On the outside were Allied Chemical, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, Allied Chemical, Tractor, American Airlines, Boeing, Curtiss-Wright "A", Du Pont, General Electric, Schenley, Westinghouse and Union Carb

Winners in the dramatic declamation eliminations held Wednesday evening and who will participate in the contests this morning are: Margaret Weber, "The Man Without a Country"; Gloria Baron, "The"; Valeri Spade, "In Rebecca's Room"; Irma Bartley, "Jean Marie"; Helen Barry will be chairman.

Competing in the original oratorical contest this morning will be: James Degnan, "Industrial Peace—A Two Way Proposition"; Marilyn Groos, "Just a Negro"; and David Locke, "The Foundation of Real Peace." Edith Harrington is chairman.

Senator Answers Bureau Invitation

Marquette—Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, ranking Republican member of the upper house of Congress, was unable to state at this time whether he would be able to attend the 37th annual meeting of the Upper Peninsula Development Bureau to be held in Marquette October 9 and 10 but he left the way open for future discussion of the invitation.

Meanwhile, Lieutenant Governor Vernon J. Brown has accepted an invitation to be one of the principal speakers during the annual session, George E. Bishop, secretary-manager of the Bureau, announces.

Senator Vandenberg replied to Bishop's invitation as follows: "I cannot foresee my October obligations so far in advance. For example, I may have to attend the second session of the general assembly of the United Nations which will undoubtedly be meeting throughout October. On the other hand I am very hopeful not only that this session will adjourn next summer, but also that I shall have a few free months in Michigan for the first time since Pearl Harbor. If I do, I certainly intend to renew my U. P. pilgrimages."
